

LOOKING AT LYME PODCAST FEATURES LISA LEARNING AND NANCEY THOMPSON: THE STORY BEHIND ATLANTICK AND THE SCIENCE BEHIND OUR SPRAY

Looking at Lyme is an educational podcast created by the Canadian Lyme Disease Foundation. Hosted by Sarah Cormode, the podcast is designed to increase awareness and empower listeners with expert knowledge about Lyme disease and other tick-borne illnesses.

Recently, the podcast featured Lisa

Learning and Nancy Thompson, co-founders of AtlanTick Repellent Products Inc. AtlanTick is a company that specializes in creating safe and effective tick repellents that are specifically designed to protect against ticks that can carry Lyme disease.

During the podcast, Learning and Thompson shared their experiences of working in the tick repellent industry and discussed the challenges of creating a product that is both effective and safe for use on humans and pets. They also shared their insights into the latest research and developments in the field of tick-borne illnesses and discussed the importance of education and awareness in preventing Lyme disease.

The podcast episode also featured a discussion on the dangers of Lyme disease and the importance of early diagnosis and treatment. Lyme disease can be difficult to diagnose, as symptoms can mimic those of other illnesses, and treatment can be challenging as the disease can persist even after antibiotics have been administered.

Learning and Thompson stressed the importance of using tick repellents and taking preventative measures to reduce the risk of contracting Lyme disease. They emphasized that it is essential to be vigilant when spending time in areas where ticks are prevalent, such as wooded areas, and to check for ticks regularly after outdoor activities.

Overall, the Looking at Lyme podcast is an excellent resource for anyone interested in learning more about Lyme disease and the latest developments in the field. The recent feature of Lisa Learning and Nancy Thompson from AtlanTick Repellent Products Inc. provided valuable insights into the challenges and opportunities of creating safe and effective tick repellents and highlighted the importance of education and awareness in preventing tick-borne illnesses. To hear the full podcast visit

<https://www.lookingatlyme.ca/.../52-natural-bug.../>