mokee

We are moKee, and we have been admiring and observing stylish nurseries for years.

Dozens of thousands of babies around Europe have been raised in moKee Mini Cot, our very first product. Today, we produce everything parents need to create a unique baby space. We follow the trends, and we are proud to say that our cots, Moses baskets and accessories are continuously the heart and beginning of amazing design ideas for beautiful and practical baby rooms. To create this catalogue, we also asked Kamila Snela, an interior designer, to share her ideas. Come and see how the nurseries are done nowadays.

Forming the universe

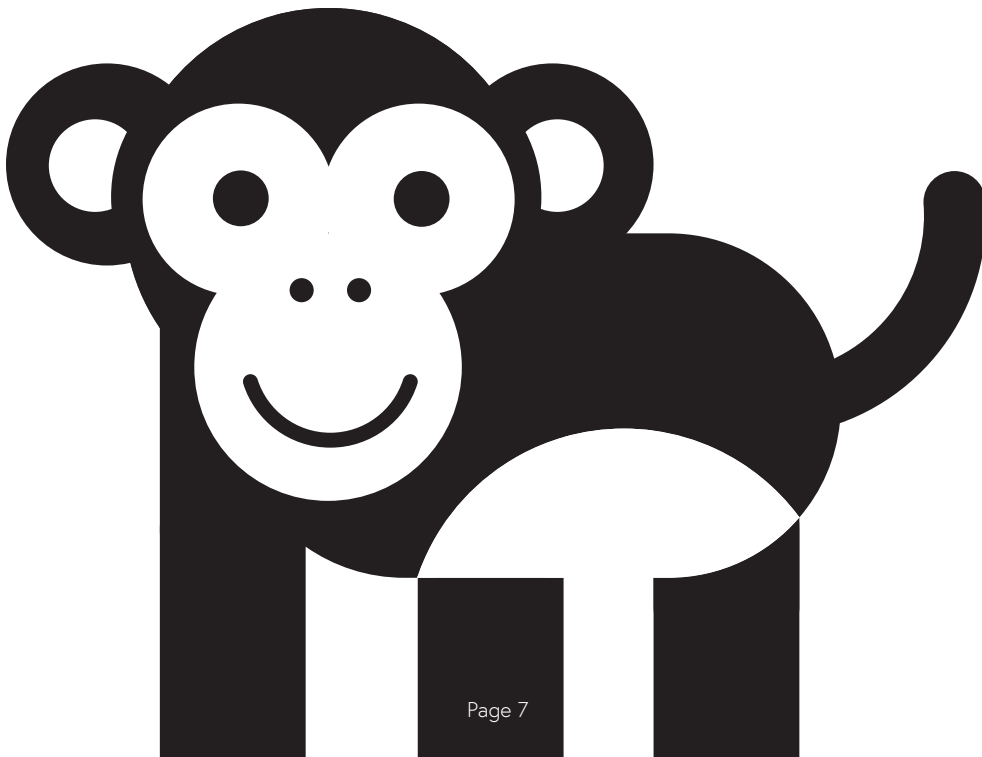

A nursery is a universe. A universe we create ourselves. When we begin to design the space, our baby might still be in a womb. We keep wondering - what will they be like? What will be their passion? But also - what would we like to teach and show them? What's important to us? What do we like? We probably check a million of inspirations, and finally, we decide on one. During the first year of your baby's life, the nursery will be their entire universe. And forever, this first nursery will be the oldest memory and a postcard from childhood.

We've designed three universes for you. Simple, wild & colourful. Universes for babies and their parents. Universes to be together.

Kids in the jungle

A piece of wood is the best toy and makes the best furniture. And kids are best when kept in a jungle, with tigers, giraffes, grass reaching higher than dad's head and a pack of frantic monkeys. In such a setting, they grow up healthy and happy.

Kids love nature, animals, hideouts, wildness, jumpy mattresses and space to play. Nature loves FSC wood, ecologically sourced materials and products that stay with you for longer. Furniture made of eco wood, which grow with your child is a perfect choice for parents who wish our planet well.

Natural materials such as wood make the interior cosier. When this is combined with a floral theme, it enhances the effect. What is more, it's a universal style - it will work for both girls' and boys' rooms.

Black & white nursery

Newborns are not very good at noticing stuff. They like things to be clear. They cannot tell pink from red. But they see better if you offer them high contrast visual stimulation. Black & white helps your baby to focus. Focusing helps your baby to develop.

Black & white is far from boring. It's symmetry, a world of contrasts, a play with shapes and textures. It's boldness.

It's also a safe base for adding any other decor in the future. And when in such a space you decide to go for a black cot instead of a white one, the whole nursery gets a cutting-edge vibe, and the nursery looks like no other.

“ The monochrome interior is a great starting point for future changes in the baby's room. We can say that the black & white room will grow with the baby. As their needs will change, so will the nursery by implementing additional colours and hanging its character. ”

It's not just furniture. The walls, the floor, even the door can be colourful. Add some textiles, posters, accessories. When it comes to a cot - pick a pink, mint or yellow one. Will violet go with it all? And what about turquoise? Orange? The answer is always yes if you are creative enough. Just go crazy.

“ Certainly, a colourful room is for those who are brave decorators. It isn't easy, but if you do it right, it can be outstanding. Don't be afraid of mixing & matching different textures, patterns & colours - the variety can be invigorating. ”

Peek-a-boo!

Today we are peeking into 3 homes to see the amazing nurseries. Instagram is like houses in the night. It's dark outside, and the light inside shows us little bits of the interiors. We all love to peep, don't we? We admire the design & get inspired, so it's all for a good cause.

Roxi Zeeman

www.souqdesign.co.uk

Roxi created the most bright and gauzy nursery for her daughter Coco. The room makes you smile, and it's relaxing to just look at it. One would think that the things Roxi concentrated on while designing the nursery are the atmosphere, the colours and the feel of the room has. However, she says that practicality, function and storage must come first. For the natural-looking room, Roxi chose the moKee Mini Cot White Beech. It was perfect because she prefers to create a calm and neutral space that can evolve as their interests change. And the moKee cot in neutral colours is made for this. A nice tip for every nursery from Roxi is: mixing high street items with vintage & bespoke pieces always offers just the right amount of eclectic balance to keep a space interesting.

Stephanie Savvides-Howell

@my_london_home

We were amazed by the nursery Stephanie created. It was so bold, so brave, and so delicate and girly at the same time. Stephanie says - give it time, don't rush the design. It's better to wait and see what your baby is like. She redecorated the nursery after her daughter was born, as the original design didn't fit who she really was. She is inspired by many things from Instagram to hotel rooms and restaurants. There is a bit of great design everywhere. The nursery Stephanie created started with a vivid floral wallpaper, which reflects the personality of her daughter. Then they matched the yellow paint to it, and the room got a coherent look. They chose a moKee Mini Cot because of its small size & minimalistic design. Also, the colour caught their attention. Top tip from Stephanie to all of you designing a nursery right now is: Get the basics right and you can add to it once your child is born and you know how you've been using the space.

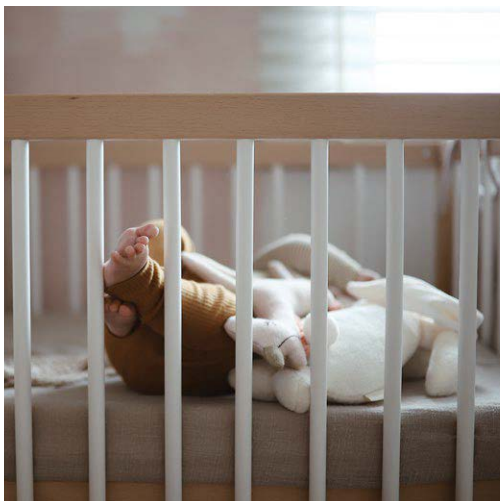

Milena Palkij

@me_myself_and_em

For Milena, mum of Maja, Mila and Mia the meterage is less important than the functionality of the space should have. Sometimes a small corner in the parents' bedroom can be better organized than an entire nursery. And with beautiful accessories, you will get a perfect interior. As well as when designing the older daughters' room and the baby corner in the bedroom, Milena searched for inspirations on Instagram and Pinterest. She opted for good quality products and minimalistic timeless design. She focused on meeting her daughters' needs and keeping the budget within reason. When choosing products she was looking for good quality materials and the country of origin but also for brand ethics. Milena is constantly completing the range of moKee must-haves - those scandi accessories look great in the nursery and the parents' bedroom.

Oh, so this is what they buy for a baby nowadays

We present you the products, which have been very popular recently. We will explain what makes them useful and when you need them, and when - not so much.

Moses basket

Attachment parenting.
The entire home is a baby space.

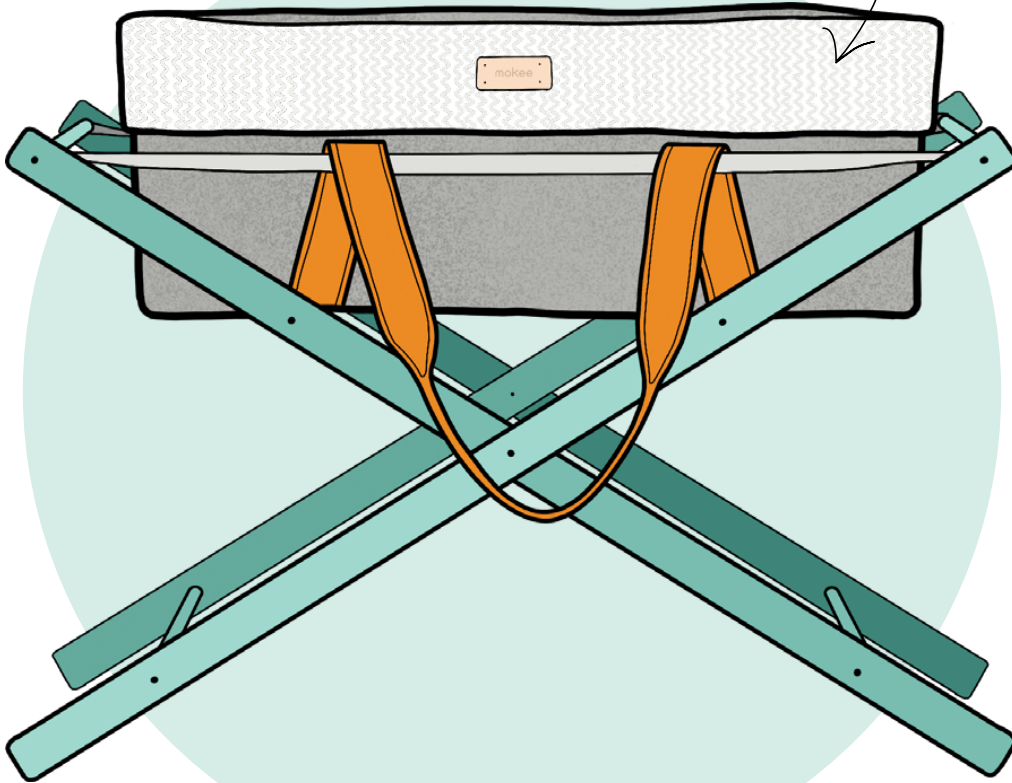

When a baby is born every room in the house starts filling itself with accessories, gadgets, blankets, toys and furniture. And that's the way it should be because the baby is a very important part of the family.

Moses basket is the baby's first piece of furniture in the living room. Or the garden. Or in the bedroom. It's so universal. Thanks to this smart basket, the entire house becomes a perfect napping and gurgling place. It puts the baby at the centre of all family events.

moKee offers a variety of Moses baskets to choose from: a wicker one, soft seagrass basket and one made of wool felt (we are the only producer in the world). With or without a stand or even a rocking one.

We honestly recommend the Moses basket to anyone with a bigger apartment or house, and those who want to take a cosy & familiar bed for any trip to grandparents.

Baby bouncer

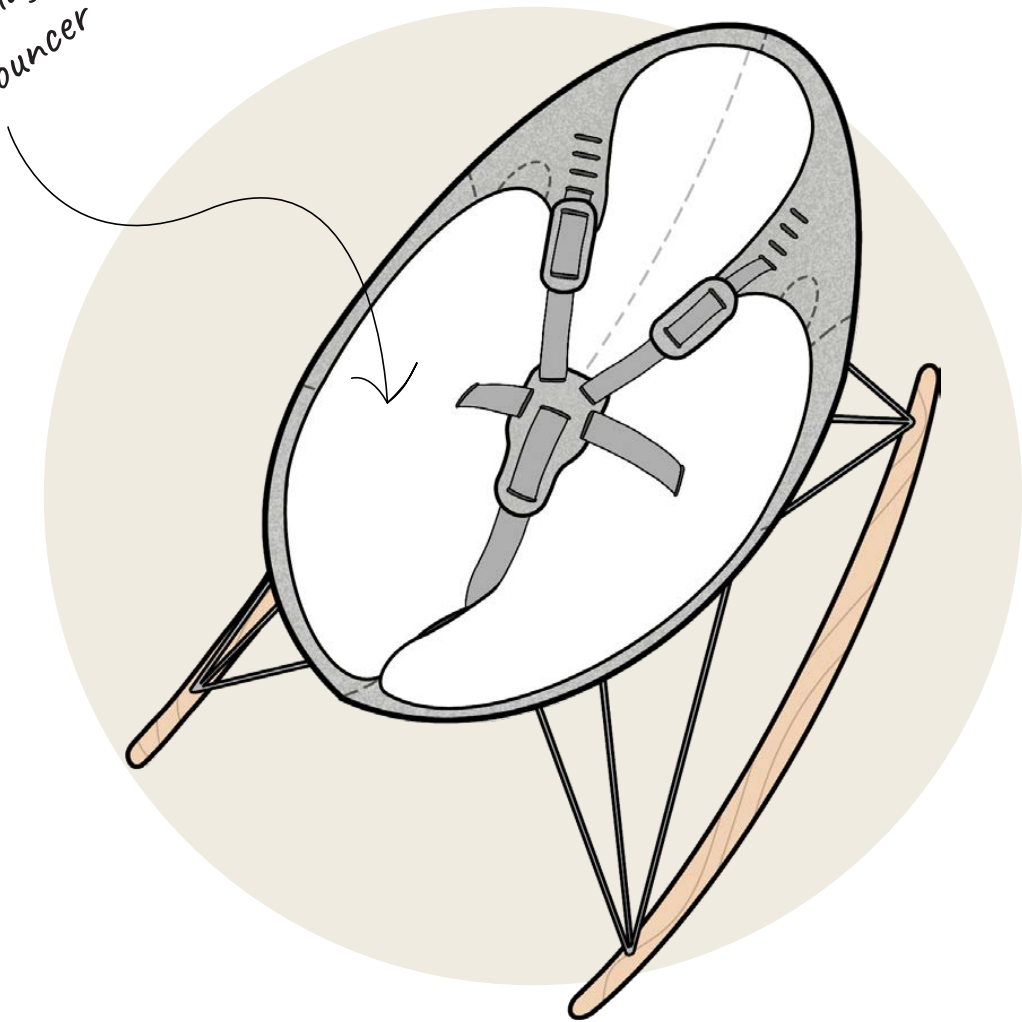

A magic thing that makes a baby
happy and mum's hands free

Anyone using a baby bouncer will swear to its usefulness. Usually, it's one or the other - happy baby or a parent with hands-free. The magic of a baby bouncer makes both things possible at the same time.

A bouncer makes the following possible: having a coffee with a piece of cake, some cooking, cleaning the coffee table, a bath, 30 minutes of yoga and a few others. It makes daily life with a baby easier.

moKee has launched the first-ever baby bouncer made of felt. It's soft but stiff enough to hold a baby's spine in a comfy and healthy position. It's been tested and certified for safety. It's natural and beautiful. It rocks the baby delicately, calms and lulls with a view on mum.

New moKee bed

among child beds

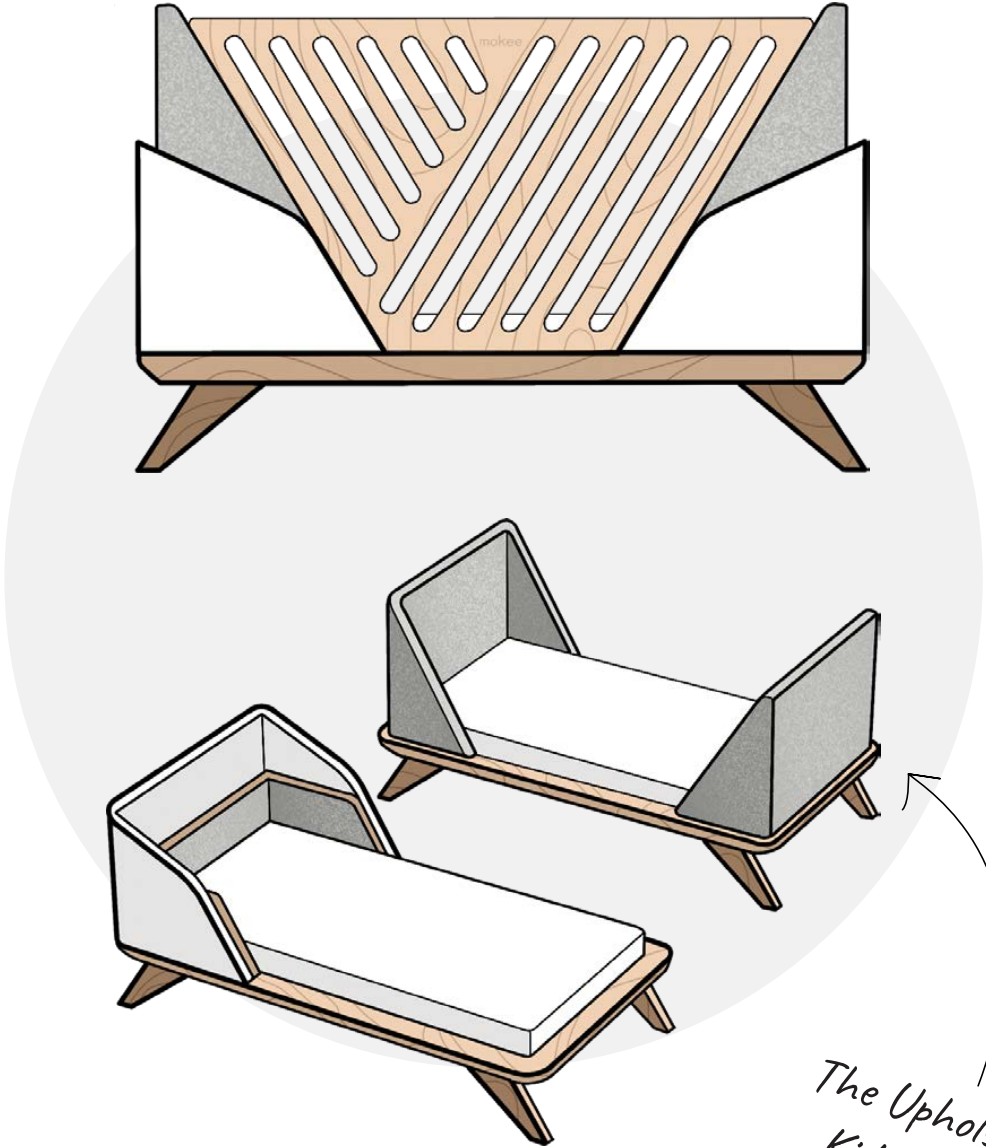

Change is the only sure thing when you had your baby. It begins with a lot of sleeping and eating, then there are rotations and crawling, and the next thing you know they are jumping on the mattress and climbing the stairs.

You have to keep up. That is why we created real transformers, which can change completely depending on the needs of the growing child.

It's a cot, a toddler's bed, a sofa. It's entire shape changes in a blink as if a new piece of furniture was born. We made it the way we at moKee love the most - using natural and simple materials - wool felt, plywood and wood. The upholstery makes it cosy & charming.

It's just like looking at your child. Were they really this little baby at some point? Was this sofa once a cot?

The Upholstered Kids Cot Bed

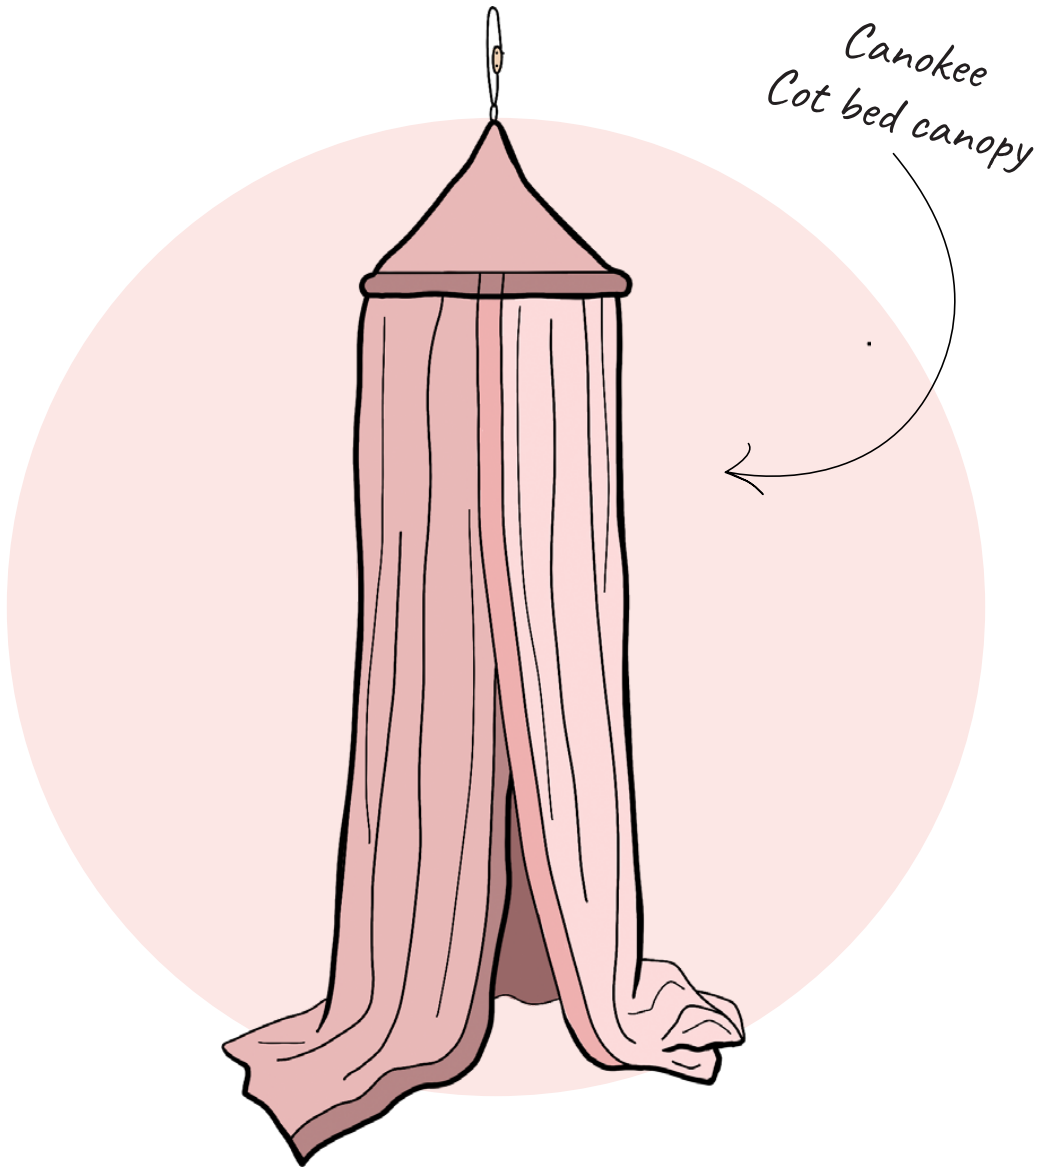

Cot bed canopy

Magic and mystery

A canopy is a very fashionable nursery accessory. It's usually put over a cot to create a mysterious, delicate vibe in a baby's room. In the evening, it will help to shield the baby from the light and create a cosy place to sleep.

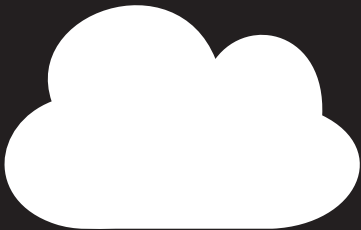

When a baby gets bigger, the canopy can be a hideout place for play. It evokes the imagination, brings princes and princesses to life, calls for dragons and wizards and others.

At moKee, you will find a few colour options of cot bed canopy (the Canokee), made of breathable linen with additional velcro stap for safety. We didn't use a wire to create a circle shape, we went for a safe foam. Sure, your baby will grow healthy and also happy without it. Nevertheless, with a canopy, it's easier to create some magic.
