

ANTIQUES TRADE
gazette
 THE ART MARKET WEEKLY

Nilson of The Antiques Dealers Fair Limited to its organisational team. Alex Puddy, chairman of CADA, said Nilson "will be assisting with the planning and the organisation of the new fair to make sure that it is as prestigious as before".

Previously it was staged in Blenheim Palace in spring. Earlier this year, however, it was announced that the Oxfordshire home would start undergoing works in 2020 with no known completion date.

Folk art teams with Contemporary

An antique felt-working cone, c.1820, is the basis for a collaboration between folk art dealer Robert Young and Contemporary artist John Strutton this month. It is presented as an exploration of Strutton's father's experience in the hat industry and the decline in the manufacturing industries in 1980s-90s Britain.

Above: Contemporary artist John Strutton's work Head Case in Robert Young's Battersea shop.

Head Case is installed in the window of Young's Battersea shop until November 10. It is the fifth iteration in his series Contemporary Collaborations, which combines historic pieces with emerging artists.