INTERIOR DESIGNERS

We're often asked how we compile this list. The answer is that, though there are some constants in our methodology, it's a little different every year. The reach of our editorial team is extensive, so we can search out the best interiors and the creatives behind them. The vetting is thorough: portfolios examined, associates contacted and clients' experiences sought out. But, each year, there are whispers about rising stars and encounters with designers whose work captures the mood of the moment. And so our Top 100 is constantly evolving – like the interiors you find in the magazine.

RITA KONIG

A modern day renaissance woman, Rita is not only a decorator par excellence, she is also a House & Garden columnist, product designer, purveyor of desirable goods and host of interior-design workshops. Add to this a well-honed sense of what makes a relaxed home and you can see why she is so sought after.

She says 'What I am interested in is how to be comfortable. Often, it's as simple as wanting to sit down and have somewhere to put your drink and a light to read your book by.'

We say 'It's hard for us to be completely impartial, as Rita is part of the House & Garden family, but her natural flair and down-to-earth nature make her a major force in British decorating.' ritakonig.com

RIVIÈRE INTERIORS

The antique dealer Robert Young and his wife, Josyane, take on only a few projects at a time to ensure their small team can give them the attention they need. Self-taught, but equipped with a good eye, they create interiors that show the utmost sensitivity to architecture, a confident use of colour, a grasp of space and a strong dose of originality.

We say 'The work of Rivière Interiors shows a modernity of spirit while being sensitive to the past.' robertyoungantiques.com

ROBERT CARSLAW

Prior to setting up on his own in 1983, Robert Carslaw worked under the great twentieth-century designer Christopher Rowley. Today, his portfolio suggests an affinity with the English country house, although his approach varies from light and airy to traditional and pattern rich.

He says 'I have always felt that my art-school training, followed by a three-year diploma course in interior design, gave me the ability to express my creativity and has allowed me to take a pragmatic approach to a variety of briefs.'

We say 'This accomplished designer has a rare grasp of what makes a room beautiful and comfortable.' robertcarslaw.com

ROBERT KIME

Antique dealer, decorator and textile connoisseur, Robert Kime (below) creates beautiful interiors that lift the spirits. His projects are a distillation of 50 years of experience, his inquisitive eye and an impeccable knowledge of history, objects and architecture.

He says 'Decorating makes my life worthwhile – it completes and reflects me.'

We say 'First and foremost, Robert is a collector. He has an insatiable curiosity and a unique ability to turn the simplest object into a rare treasure by putting it in the right place. There are plenty of interior designers on this list who cite Robert's idiosyncratic style as an inspiration.' robertkime.com ▷
