What became of past struggles? Now the records are still,
But courage still lingers, giving strength to the land.

By favor they think they will grow.

And the mountains say:
It's only light
Can make the darkness run.
Lift up your head,
Greet the rising sun!

3. It's in your heart

The songs of joy resound:
You'll hear but echoes
In the world around.
Wind on a hill
Sounds lonely, if you're sad,
Free, if you're free,
Cheerful, if you're glad.

2. Some people think

To harvest happiness
By weeding troubles,
Easing ev'ry stress.
The trouble is
That troubles never end:
Get rid of one,
And you face its friend!

4. Friends, come with me —

We'll chant of battles won!
Shots not of anger:
Joy will be our gun!
Before the light
The veils of sorrow rend;
In inner freedom
All delusions end!

 They've haunted my slumber,
 And called to me out of the deeps of space.
 The love that they promise
 Has helped me remember
 Another time, a caring embrace.

2. Dark eyes in the morning,
 Dark eyes in the evening,
 Dark eyes in the starlight at end of day:
 Dark eyes that speak silence,
 They whisper, "Come find me:
 You'll never know true love, if you stay."

3. Now I seek them in the wintertime,
 Oh, I seek them in the spring:
 Those two dark eyes draw my heart away
 To where sun and moon sing!

I laugh now in the summertime,
 When ripples on the river play.
 I laugh, soaring with the meadowlarks.
 Love has made my heart gay.
 I laugh, soaring with the meadowlarks.
 Love has made my heart gay.

Dm Fm 3 E7 G7 Am Cm G7 Bb7 Am Cm

1. There lived a tender maid

In a far-off country.

The strangeness of this world made her sigh.

Her friends asked their fathers

For money and clothes,

But all she could ask was —

Why?

2. She saw the solemn clouds

Gathered watching a rainbow;

The bright rays of their joy filled the sky.

Her teachers explained it

All wisely away,

But still her heart wondered —

Why?

3. She saw the silent stars

Thrill the night with their gladness.

They seemed some wond'rous truth to imply.

Her elders all slept,

But the magic of light

Awoke her to ponder —

Why?

4. She saw a mother smile

As she tended her baby;

A widow weep, that love had to die.

The joy of new friends,

And the sadness of parting:

All these made her ask God —

Why?

5. One night into her heart

Stole the secret of oneness —

The bond not even time can untie.

For Love then possessed her

And made her His own.

In love she at last learned —

Why.

Boys Go To and Fro	20
Divine Love Sorrows	60
Door of My Heart	63
O Master	190

This songbook is a companion for the journey of life. The lyrics are a guide to living wisely and well. The music helps open our hearts to a greater reality, within and all around us.

But don't take our word for it. Sing it for yourself. This music is for your personal enjoyment, group sing-alongs, and performance.

This collection is all of Swami Kriyananda's vocal melodies in one place for the first time. Each song is easy to read and sing, without additional choral parts or elaborate instrumentation. Beginning guitarists and pianists will find nearly everything easy to play.

Swamiji composed over 400 pieces of music. Though he often consciously drew this inspiration, there were many times a melody came into his awareness, asking to be written down and shared. He was moved to tears as he composed, describing the process as receiving from a higher source. "This music is not my music. It is a new consciousness coming into the world as music."

Music touches us deeply, in a way that bypasses the conscious mind. Singing can uplift our consciousness, overcoming moods and challenging attitudes. Some people have been healed just listening to this music. May these songs enrich your life, opening new worlds of self-discovery and joy.
