Style and Substance with Nate Berkus

Award-winning designer Nate Berkus has made a living off of great taste. But he knows better than anyone, the things that matter go far beyond aesthetics alone. Each issue, he'll be sharing a few of his favorite things.

Amanda Gorman's The Hill We Climb

I think this brilliant poet had the entire country in tears. This needs to be in everyone's library. bookshop.org

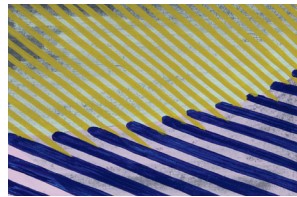

Paloroma Kids' Skincare

These are gentle, natural products that our kids love and that we as parents feel great about using. paloroma.com

La Boticá

My favorite candle for the summer is the CASABLANCA. It's sustainable and inspired by Afro-Dominican culture. laboticanyc.com

Paintings by Natalie Lanese

I've had the pleasure of collaborating with Cleveland-based artist Natalie Lanese on various projects. She is wildly talented, and her eye-catching work is not to be missed—whether it's her large-scale public installations or her paintings and collages that are available for purchase. natalielanese.com

Adjourn Teahouse

If you love rituals, especially ones that encourage you to slow down and take a beat, then these beautifully curated, artisanal teas are a must. They're hand-blended, all-natural, and woman-owned... need I say more? adjournteahouse.com

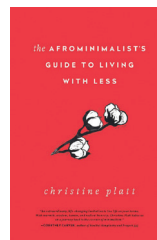

Sabah Bleecker | Street Baba

I adore things that are made by hand and that have a rich history. These two-tone Turkish slippers tick both those boxes, plus they make for the easiest breeziest summer shoe. sabah.am

Leeway Home Tabletop Kits

On the theme of living more intentionally, I love these all-in-one tabletop kits from Leeway Home. Designed to making setting the table simpler, while using less, the kits are genius. leewayhome.co

Christine Platt's The Afrominimalist's Guide to Living with Less

As someone who subscribes to living only with the things that matter (and as a constant editor of my own home), I can't wait to read this book. afrominimalist.com

Round Swamp Farm

This is the perfect place to go if you find yourself in the Hamptons this summer. Everything is utterly delicious and house-made, I can't resist a single thing when shopping here. roundswampfarm.com

Mosquito Coast on Apple TV+

I'm telling everyone I know about this show—which we binged, of course. Unapologetically. apple.com/tv
