START A NEW AND BETTER LIFE!

SIBERIAN NATURE CHANGES THE QUALITY OF LIFE.

It was with this mantra in mind that Siberian Wellness was born 22 years ago. Company Servicing Centers for Clients and Consultants are opened in 26 countries, including the EU countries, Vietnam, Russia and the CIS countries.

Siberia is a unique region! More than 70% of its enormous territory (an area that is larger than China or the United States) is still untouched by civilization! Nowhere else can you find so many pristine forests, mountains and steppes! The harsh climate managed to preserve this land from industrial encroachment. It is now one of the last strongholds of untamed nature in the world.

Pure and powerful plants growing in Siberia retain a remarkable force that helps them survive in the ruthless Siberian climate. And Siberian Wellness is working hard to preserve in its products this untamed energy of nature.

WE ARE DEDICATED TO IMPROVING YOUR LIFE AND THE LIFE OF YOUR FAMILY, WHILE MAINTAINING THE NATURAL BEAUTY OF SIBERIA, ONE OF THE LAST UNSPOILED PLACES OF THE WORLD.

WELCOME TO THE WORLD OF SIBERIAN WELLNESS!

AT THE FOREFRONT OF CONSERVATION

CONSERVATION IS THE VERY CORNERSTONE OF OUR PHILOSOPHY. THE SECRET TO PHYSICAL AND MENTAL HEALTH STEMS FROM THE NATURAL WORLD, SO IT IS ONLY NATURAL THAT WE CARE DEEPLY ABOUT THE ENVIRONMENT.

Our manufacturing process filters and cleans the water and air we use.

In conjunction with this, we also insist on using the very best biodegradable materials in our products and packaging.

We absolutely prohibit the use of synthetic fillers in our products — no fumed silica, magnesium stearate or calcium stearate are used at our facilities.

In addition, we avoid using potentially harmful substances such as sulfates, phthalates, parabens, mineral oils, synthetic flavors and dyes in our products.

WE BELIEVE IN ALL NATURAL!

THE SCIENCE BEHIND THE SCIENCE

Not only are all our products manufactured in Siberia from indigenously grown herbs, but they are also formulated at our on-site Research and Innovation Center.

In collaboration with leading research and development institutions around the world, Siberian Wellness conducts a vast array of clinical trials for food supplements and other product lines.

Siberian Wellness is proud to have its own up-to-date manufacturing facilities which are GMP and ISO 9001 certified.

RESEARCH FOR A BETTER TOMORROW

HERE ARE SOME OF THE BRANCHES OF SCIENCE THAT WE ARE ENGAGED IN:

ENDOECOLOGY is the science that studies and develops the ways and means of cleaning and maintaining the internal environment of the body.

ADAPTIVE MEDICINE is the research and study of plants with unique adaptogenic properties that help improve overall protection and maximize the effectiveness of virtually all human organs and systems.

CHRONOBIOLOGY is the science that studies the principles of biological rhythms and the way they relate to human health.

CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME

We care about what will remain after us. We cannot bear to see forests getting destroyed, rivers being contaminated and animals going extinct. THE WORLD AROUND YOU Charitable Foundation established by Siberian Wellness is an active participant of the environmental protection events in the countries where the Company is present.

A GLIMPSE INTO THE WORLD OF SIBERIAN PURE HERBS

KURIL TEA
Pentaphylloides fruticosa

This famous plant was found by seafarers on the Kuril islands – they used to drink it instead of common tea. However, people who lived near the Baikal lake had been using this herb as a cleansing product since the ancient times. As legend says, the dogs helped to learn about Kuril tea beneficial properties: sick animals were looking for this herb because it brought them relief. Local people still use Kuril tea herb if there are some digestion issues.

SIBERIAN THOROUGHWAX
Bupleurum sibiricum

The local Buryat people call this herb "hare's ear" due to the shape of the plant's leaves, which resemble a small hare's ear. Thoroughwax is one of the most revered herbs in both Chinese and Buryat-Tibetan medicine. But whereas in China they use only roots, Buryat people use mostly the aerial parts of Thoroughwax which are far richer in active ingredients especially for the digestive system.

LINGONBERRY
Vaccinium vitis-idaea

This small shrub plant with pink to purple berries keeps its hard lacquered leaves alive during the entire Siberian winter. Covered with a several foot layer of snow, it can tolerate temperatures as low as -50°C (-58°F) or even lower.

SABERWEED
Comarum palustre

Every fall after the first frost, Siberian women went to gather cranberries from the marshes and swamps to provide their families with vitamins for the upcoming winter. Standing in the frigid water, they often suffered from serious joint pain. There is an ancient remedy for this disease that is still in use – a swamp plant which is known as Altai marsh cinquefoil.

HORSETAIL
Equisetum arvense

It contains up to 10% of natural silicon which participates in formation of the inner structure of a plant. This particular structure and tubed body make the horsetail one of the toughest herbs.

GARDEN BURNET
Sanguisorba officinalis

This tall plant with red cones stand out from other herbs of Siberian meadows and look like an exotic decoration. Due to its bright color local people named it "blood drinker" as translated from the local language.

SIBERIAN OREGANO
Origanum vulgare

Oregano is very popular among the people in Europe and the USA, who, unlike Siberian people, often use it as a spice. Also brewed oregano and thyme create an incredibly scented beverage that one can drink instead of common tea. Siberian oregano main benefit is in its high antioxidant activity. In this relation no existing herb can beat its effectiveness.

BAIKAL SKULLCAP
Scutellaria baicalensis

Baikal skullcap is one of few worldwide famous plants which are endemic for Baikal region. Traditional Chinese medicine has been using this plant for a long time; the doctors from western countries also pointed out its various healing effects.

SIBERIAN HEDYSARUM
Hedysarum sibiricum

Hedysarum is a mountain herb which traditionally grows in South Siberia. Siberian hunters used it to maintain physical stamina during long and exhausting hunts.

TANSY
Tanacetum vulgare

Imagine a beautiful jewel – a racemule of painterly curved golden hemispheres adorned with emeralds. This is a golden tansy, one of the most beautiful herbs in the world! In Siberia tansy became famous due to its ability to protect liver from different stresses.

SIBERIAN ROSE HIPS
Rosa davurica

Although Rose Hips are well-known on every continent, it is often misunderstood that there are a lot of different species of this common plant. Siberian Rose shrub is distinguished by its almost black twigs and deep red round-shaped fruits that make a very beautiful contrast.

SIBERIAN THYME
Thymus serpyllum

Opposite to the common thyme which grows very densely and up to 2 feet high, Siberian Thyme usually clings to mountain rocks and so it's much smaller, with fewer leaves however with many more flowers that are needed to attract insects that are so rare in the cold Siberian mountains.

TETARDIOL

Food supplement with betaine, pyridoxine and folic acid

Homocysteine is a product of metabolism; with age, our body accumulates a big amount of it, which negatively affects the heart and vascular activity. Tetrardiol is a multivitamin complex which contains four most effective natural components stimulating homocysteine neutralization.

Ingredients: betaine, maltodextrin, pyridoxine hydrochloride, folic acid, cyanocobalamin, dyes.

A GLIMPSE INTO THE WORLD OF SIBERIAN PURE HERBS

SIBERIAN GOLDEN ROOT

Rhodiola rosea

Rhodiola rosea or Siberian golden root is the most widespread plant-adaptogen in Siberia. Unlike maral root and eleuthero, golden root grows much farther to the North than any other adaptogenic plants at an altitude of 3,000-5,000 feet. And due to the harsh habitat it is extremely frost-resistant and can endure up to -60 °C (-76 °F)!

SIBERIAN GINSENG

Eleutherococcus senticosus

A famous Siberian scientist I. Brekhman conducted years of studies on various native Siberian plants, trying to find a replacement for Red Ginseng as a stimulant. He wanted to find a new herb that would increase resistance to any stress, and do so without side effects. Multi-year trials were completed with success: all of these qualities were found in eleutherococcus root which was soon called Siberian Ginseng.

SIBERIAN ARALIA

Aralia mandshurica

Teas, and in more recent times alcohol tinctures as well, made from the bark, roots, and flowers of this thorny shrub were historically used in Siberia to treat fatigue, physical and lack of sexual vigor and headaches. Together with Siberian ginseng and Golden root, Aralia is now considered as one of the most famous Siberian adaptogenic plants.

MARAL ROOT

Leuzea carthamoides

Leuzea carthamoides or maral root is a favorite plant of marals (type of Siberian deer that inhabit the Altai mountains). Long time ago local people noticed that marals often fed on the roots of Leuzea when exhausted, that's why it was given such a name – maral root. Indeed, this is a very powerful adaptogen and is known for its high content of ecdysterone – a natural anabolic.

SIBERIAN LARCH

Larix sibirica

Young twigs and branches of this tree contain a unique antioxidant – dihydroquercetin. It's a close relative of another well-known antioxidant – quercetin, but due to some differences in its chemical structure, dihydroquercetin possesses significantly higher antioxidant properties.

SIBERIAN RAMSONS

Allium ursinum

Siberian bears like to dig for the bulbs of this small plant with a very strong garlic-like scent, and that is the reason for its Latin name, which is translated as "bear's onion". The local people also knew about its rich vitamin content and harvested large amounts of its leaves and stems to preserve by salting for long winters.

CHAGA MUSHROOM
Inonotus obliquus

Chaga is a mushroom that grows for decades on old birch trunks and can reach up to 3 feet in diameter. Siberian shamans believed that these mushrooms accumulated the sacred energy of the Earth which they used for centuries for strengthening the body and the mind. However, they always warned people to be careful when harvesting Chaga because of the danger of being shocked by the dramatic energy that could be released.

SIBERIAN ANGELICA
Angelica archangelica

The fluted stem of this plant can easily reach 6 feet in height and its fragrant flowers form a huge "umbrella" up to 4-5 feet in diameter. And thus it is one of the biggest grassy plants in Siberian forest. The local people used to drink its sweet and fragrant sap, which is accumulated within its hollow stem in large amounts.

SIBERIAN SEA-BUCKTHORN
Hippophae rhamnoides

These small bright orange berries contain possibly the highest amount of bio-available beta-carotene, and not only in Siberia, but on the whole planet. "Bio-available" means that sea-buckthorn beta-carotene is already dissolved in natural oil and thus is ready to be absorbed by the body in contrast to most of all the other beta-carotene sources that lack natural oil or fat.

BERGENIA
Bergenia crassifolia

This plant, which is also known as badan or Siberian tea, has very thick and hard leaves that can survive during even the most severe winters. In spring and summer these old leaves undergo natural self-fermentation and become dark and dry. The local people gather them to brew a very aromatic and tonifying tea.

SIBERIAN CEDAR
Pinus sibirica

This is one of the tallest trees in Siberian forests. It reaches up to 150 feet in height and its trunk can reach 7 feet in diameter. Siberian Cedar is also a symbol of longevity, having an astounding lifespan of up to 500-700 years. The seeds of Siberian Cedar are a very important staple in the diet of the locals.

ZIZIPHORA
Ziziphora bungeana

Coming home to their yurts and to a hot mug of Ziziphora tea with a pat of yak butter floating on top after a hard day of wolf hunting on horseback with berkuts (the big Siberian eagles they hunt with) is an ancient tradition of Altai nomads. They believed that Ziziphora invigorates the heart and nourishes the blood.

ENDESSENCE

ESSENCES OF ENDEMIC SIBERIAN PLANTS

ENDESSENCE – A BESPOKE ENHANCING COMPLEX WITH THE VITAL POWER OF ENDEMIC SIBERIAN PLANTS.

PURE HERBAL COSMETICS:

- Ultra-rich formula;
- Targeted action;
- Fast-acting and visible effect.

ENDESSENCE EFFECT:

- Enhances the effect of cosmetics' ingredients.
- Provides antioxidative protection, supports skin protective properties.
- Promotes regeneration, increasing the skin cells lifespan, thereby prolonging youth at the cellular level.

ENDESSENCE TECHNOLOGIES

Unlike traditional means of extraction, revolutionary technology Eutectys™ makes it possible to preserve "viable" and highly bioactive juice of endemic plants by almost completely extracting their precious assets.

ENDESSENCE HERBS

ENDESSENCE complex is based on the vital essences of five endemic Siberian herbs:

- Baikal skullcap is known for its adaptogenic, antioxidant and anti-aging properties.
- Siberian Leuzea (maral root) delivers tonifying, invigorating and adaptogenic effects.
- Rhododendron is famous for its antioxidant and antiseptic properties, and contributes to better cellular metabolism.
- Siberian Ginseng possesses invigorating, tonifying and adaptogenic properties.
- Rhodiola helps to cleanse cells from toxins and wastes, normalize metabolism and strengthen the immune system.

The combination of highly bioactive essences of endemic plants* and revolutionary extraction technology resulted in a highly effective complex – ENDESSENCE.

* Endemic plants or endemics – plants, growing solely on the particular territory (in this case – in Siberia).

A GLIMPSE INTO THE WORLD OF SIBERIAN PURE HERBS

SIBERIAN FIR

Abies sibirica

This tall evergreen tree is famous for its resin. Unlike pines or cedars, the trunk of the fir tree has a very thin, soft and smooth bark studded with numerous little resin swellings. The indigenous people used to prick these swellings with a needle or a knife and then gather the outflowing resin to use it for healing wounds.

SIBERIAN JUNIPER

Juniperus sibirica

For centuries the Siberian people knew about the antibacterial and antifungal properties of Juniper, which is very rich in volatile oils. They brewed its young twigs in boiling water and then with this hot infusion they washed the barrels that they used for preserving food during the long winters.

GUELDER ROSE

Viburnum opulus

Guelder rose berries are very sour and are deemed uneatable in most countries where they grow. Since Siberian food potential is limited, locals managed to use these berries. In particular, they use these berries as a traditional Siberian pie filler.

SIBERIAN CRANBERRY

Vaccinium oxycoccus

Wild-growing Siberian cranberry contains a high amount of antioxidants. Although it's not only the chemical composition that is different, Siberian cranberries even look quite different from their American counterparts. These berries are smaller and thicker, with a much more intense aroma, and they taste sour, not sweet.

COLTSFOOT

Tussilago farfara

Translated from a local language the name of this plant means "mother-and-stepmother." It is because the upper surface of its leaves is smooth and it feels cold upon touching it, while the opposite side is velvety-furred and pleasantly warm.

SIBERIAN WINTERGREEN

Chimaphila umbellata

Translated from several languages in different countries the name of this small forest plant means "winter-loving". The reason is that this is one of the rarest evergreen grassy plants in northern forests including those in Siberia.

AMUR CORK TREE
Phellodendron amurense

Along with the famous ginkgo biloba, the Amur Cork Tree is a relict tree, which means that it existed on the Earth before the Ice Age when most primeval plants had already died. The bark of this tree is highly revered in traditional Chinese medicine as a multi-purpose medicine.

SIBERIAN FIREWEED
Chamerion angustifolium

This was a very important plant for the local Siberian population. The leaves of Fireweed can undergo natural fermentation, much like real tea, and thus they were in wide use for centuries as an excellent substitute for common tea.

ARNICA
Arnica montana

This plant prefers alpine meadows and can easily grow at altitudes of up to 9,000 feet. Arnica is one of the most potent "cardiovascular" herbs on the planet, however, it is rarely used now because it grows very sparsely and high up in the mountains which makes harvesting very difficult.

SIBERIAN FLAX
Linum usitatissimum

People in Siberia have historically used Flax fiber as a substitute for the more expensive cotton. But since a lot of Flax seeds were always left over after processing, they learned to extract the oil from them and use it for food. Modern scientists discovered the heart-protecting properties of Flax seed oil only towards the end of the 20th century.

SIDEBELLS WINTERGREEN
Orthilia secunda

Translated from a local language the name of this small evergreen herb means "women's forest herb". It is because this plant was historically used for treating female infertility.

SIBERIAN SAW-WORT
Saussurea pygmaea

This plant is a typical "highlander". It often can be found high up in the mountains at the level of glaciers. In order to evade the ruthless mountain sun and dehydration this plant developed several very specific features. It is densely furred with wooly hairs and all its stems and roots are closely tangled together to form a dense mass in the form of a hemisphere, which the local people name "witch's rings".
