Anatomy of Adhesive

which glue is best for you?

The recommended environment means YOUR ROOM, not the outside

5 Major Adhesive Qualities to Consider

- Level of Experience
- Temperature & Humidity
- Lashing Method
- Viscosity Preference
- Color Preference

What Method Calls for What Glue?

Traditional Placement (top, bottom, side) can call for a SPEED glue, because placement is fast.

Wrapping Placement calls for a normal drying glue, because the process takes longer

This is true when temp, humidity, and experience is correct.

Proper Adhesive Storage

The objective is to avoid raising the core temp above it's recommendation. This will speed up oxidation, and spoil the glue prematurely. Cool never hurts, so we recommend cool containers or a beauty fridge.

How long is your adhesive good for?

28 Days. Exposure to gases when met with oxygen make glue toxic after 28 days. I replace every 14 days to keep my preferred viscosity.

Dry Time Considerations

Your dry time recommendation is based on your level of experience, your temp/humidity, your lashing method, and your preference.

FAST NORMAL SLOW

If the temperature or humidity in your room rise, your adhesive will dry faster. AND If the temperature or humidity in your room dip, your adhesive will dry slower. BUT If the temperature in your room rises, and humidity dips, it may create balance. AND If the temperature in your room dips, and humidity rises, it may create balance.

Proper Adhesive Disposal

Uncured adhesive can emit vapors, you can add a water dot to cure your adhesive dots. This isn't necessary, however it does cure the adhesive within a minute.

How often to refresh your glue dot?

When your adhesive viscosity changes, and it becomes more viscous (thicker). Temp, humidity & how many drops in each refresh control this.
