Anatomy of Adhesive

which glue is best for you?

The recommended environment means YOUR ROOM, not the outside

5 Major Adhesive Qualities to Consider

What Method Calls for What Glue?

Traditional Placement (top, bottom, side) can call for a SPEED glue, because placement is fast.

Wrapping Placement calls for a normal drying glue, because the process takes longer

This is true when temp, humidity, and experience is correct.

Proper Adhesive Storage

The objective is to avoid raising the core temp above it's recommendation. This will speed up oxidation, and spoil the glue prematurely. Cool never hurts, so we recommend cool containers or a beauty fridge.

How long is your adhesive good for?

28 Days. Exposure to gases when met with oxygen make glue toxic after 28 days. I replace every 14 days to keep my preferred viscosity.

Dry Time Considerations

Your dry time recommendation is based on your level of experience, your temp/humidity, your lashing method, and your preference.

FAST NORMAL SLOW

If the temperature or humidity in your room rises, your adhesive will dry faster.

AND
If the temperature or humidity in your room dips, your adhesive will dry slower.

BUT
If the temperature in your room rises, and humidity dips, it may create balance.

FLUCTUATING ROOMS; NORMAL TO NEED TWO DIFFERENT GLUES THROUGHOUT THE DAY IF VASTLY CHANGING.

Electric gages are not accurate and are inconsistent

How often to refresh your glue dot?

When your adhesive viscosity changes, and it becomes more viscous (thicker). Temp, humidity & how many drops in each refresh control this.

Proper Adhesive Disposal

Uncured adhesive can emit vapors, you can add a water dot to cure your adhesive dots. This isn't necessary, however it does cure the adhesive within a minute.
