**What is “copywork,” and how do I use it in my child’s education?

Copywork is a great way to teach your children. By copying passages from Great Works of literature or history, children learn many areas of Language Arts. Children have the opportunity to be exposed to great writers or historical events, while learning Spelling, Punctuation, Grammar, Vocabulary, and Creative Writing from the “Masters.” Most Classical Education programs recommend copywork as an intricate part of educating your children, quite often in place of many of the traditional Language Arts programs listed above.

By copying passages 2-3 days per week (or more), your children will come to learn and possibly even memorize some of the greatest literature from our history. While penmanship is important, the knowledge that they are gaining through the copywork is what is most important.

However, do encourage your children to take pride in their penmanship. Also, instruct them in the importance of the “art” of Spelling, Punctuation, Vocabulary, Grammar, and Creative Writing. With some practice, they will begin to “imitate” these in their own personal writing.

**How do I use THIS notebook?

Inside this book, you will find the 62 famous quotes and “notes” (information) from 7 of the great Classical music composers of history. Have your child/children read each quote and think about/discuss what it means. Have your child/children copy the quote, using his or her best penmanship. For older students, have them also write what they think this quote means. At twice per week, this notebook will last for 31 weeks. At three times per week, it will last a little more than 20 weeks. Many parents choose to have their children do copywork daily, in which case, this notebook will last for 62 school days. You will also need to determine how many times each quote should be copied, as there is ample space for multiple copies to be written.

It is NEVER too early (or too late) to begin teaching the appreciation of the Great Literary Artists and historical works.
