ONCE AGAIN, GHQ CONTINUES TO REVOLUTIONIZE WARGAMING!

Military miniatures gaming has changed a lot since our founder first got into the hobby in the early 1960's. At that time there were no game stores and no clubs. In fact, there weren't a lot of miniatures or rules either. Finding others who shared his interest was not easy. He found some of the first members of his gaming club by going over the library card in the back of some military history books to see who had checked out the same books...then he called them. They usually didn't have many choices in the rules and miniatures that they played. They generally used what they could get their hands on. Often times the rules were 5th generation mimeographed sheets that had been passed around and the miniatures were usually large the 1/87th scale HO models that take so much space to play.

He always thought that there had to be a better way to experience this great hobby. In 1967 he started GHQ and pioneered micro-scale gaming with Micro Armour®. Over 55 years Micro Armour® has won many awards and has set the standard for excellence in military miniatures around the world. Over the years GHQ has introduced many new lines into the wargaming world and has continued to expand the old ones. One thing that all of these products have in common is that all have been made with the same high quality, and all have always set new quality standards in their categories.

A lot has changed in this hobby since 1967. GHQ has tirelessly continued to produce miniatures and rules. Many of the stores that sold them have come and gone. Many of the companies that produced them have seen the same cycles, and others are no longer with us. The one constant throughout the last 55 years is that GHQ has always been there, and GHQ has always been an industry leader. Trust us, it hasn't been easy!

The wargaming landscape is now completely different from what existed in the early 1960's. In addition to the vast number of products out there, we also have the internet which has been responsible for changing the wargaming community and marketplace in previously unimaginable ways. Now there is no need to cold-call someone who checked out a book about Gettysburg to find opponents. All that you need to do is search through the online club listings, or start one of your own. Now you don't need to handwrite letters to small companies in England hoping to get a reply (because that meant they were still in business). Now you just need to do an internet search to find them. Your e-mail will usually be replied to in a day, and your order will be in your hands in a week.

Even with all of the incredible technological advances, and competition for people's time from video games, DVDs, iPads, etc. this little company that started in Minneapolis continues to produce every casting by hand, and check every casting with human eyes the same way that we did in 1967. Of course we have tried to keep up with the times. GHQ was one of the first companies in our industry to have a website. Over the last 28 years we have overhauled the website several times. In fact, we have just completed our most recent website overhaul! Throughout all of these years we have always tried to improve the entire wargame experience for our customers.

We want to make everything that we do—the miniatures, the terrain, the paints, the rules, the buildings, the website experience, etc.—as good as we possibly can. We are packing even more FREE content into our new website. In addition to the FREE paper buildings, FREE rules, FREE country studies, FREE newsletter archive, FREE TO&Es, FREE online forum, FREE Club Finder listings, FREE scenarios, FREE game supplements, etc., we will have FREE video modeling guides, FREE prototype information, and MORE!

As always, thank you for your support!

MICRO ARMOUR®: THE GAME - WWII, 2ND EDITION

Revised full color edition includes in-depth rules and examples covering ground combat, air strikes, movement, terrain and more. Pit your force's training, experience, and "cohesion" against your opponent's in historical and "what-if" battles! Includes: 28 pages of revised and expanded weapons data for Belgium, Finland, France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Poland, USSR, UK, and US; expanded aircraft data for France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Poland, USSR, UK, and US; 8 ready to play historical scenarios; combat charts and tables; scenario design instructions; all new, full-color game markers.

(Game scale: 1 inch of terrain = 100 yds/m; 1 sq. inch stand = 1 platoon; 1 game turn = 3 minutes battle time)

DOWNLOAD the unabridged PDF edition for $4.99 at wargamevault.com; look for publisher: GHQ.

MICRO ARMOUR®: THE GAME - MODERN

Look in the ghqmodels.com "Resource" menu for FREE country histories and TO&Es!

This book picks up where GHQ's WWII game ends. Just as military technology, tactics, and doctrine have evolved in the last 50 years, your games will mirror these. Training, experience, and "cohesion" are still important factors in deciding who wins and loses.

In addition to a great rules set, you get over 50 pages of weapons data, a complete scenario generator, plus full color graphics for minefields, napalm and airstrikes and a convenient Combat Table Card. Also included are 15 ready-to-play historical scenarios—including a 5 scenario "tutorial" based on the famous Fulda Gap. In addition to the US & USSR/Russian information in this book, 39 more Country Studies are available at GHQ's website! The rules are still concise, easy to learn and fun to play. Nobody models tanks like GHQ - here's the game for Micro Armour®. (Game scale: 1 inch = 100 yds/meters; 1 model or stand = 1 platoon; 1 turn = 3 minutes.)

MG4 — $32.99 (soft cover)

MICRO FORCE 10MM®: THE GAME - ACW

Take command of a division in the American Civil War with this fast-playing and fun system!

It has everything: rules, tables, a scenario generator plus a collection of prepared scenarios featuring many of the most popular battles of the "War between the States." 64 pages! If you love the Civil War, this is a great introduction to gaming for new gamers, collectors and historians. A typical 2-player game on a 4 ft. x 4 ft. board runs 2-3 hours.

(Game scale: 1 inch of terrain = 25 yd/m; 1 infantry stand = about 70 men; 1 cannon model = a section: 2 guns)

MICRONAUTS®: THE GAME - WWII

Take command of your favorite WWII fleet! Fast-paced rules for tabletop Naval actions of World War II. The rules feature telescoping time scales, from 1 hour "strategic turns" to 1 minute "impulses" during the crucial final seconds of air attacks.

You not only get a great set of rules, but also ship & aircraft data cards for the major navies of the war. Also included are a complete scenario generator and a convenient Combat Table Card. Get started immediately with one of the ready-to-play historical scenarios: these range from simple surface actions to full-blown fleet conflagrations. As always, these GHQ rules are concise, easy to learn and fun to play.

(Game scale: 1 inch = 1000 yds/meters; 1 ship model = 1 ship; 1 tactical turn = 6 minutes.)

MICRO SQUAD®: THE 1:1 GAME - WWII, 2ND EDITION

"Micro Armour®: the Game - WWII" set the standard for fast moving, realistic, and easy-to-learn platoon scale wargame rules in 2001. Now the MICRO SQUAD® 2nd Edition brings the same great action to 1:1 scale gaming!

Like "MATG - WWII", this system is designed for both the history buff and the game player. Training, experience, and "cohesion" of players' forces are important factors in deciding the outcome of each battle. These EXPANDED rules include weapons and aircraft data for Finland, France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Poland, Romania, USSR, UK, & US. Also included are markers, combat table card, scenario generator, and 10 ready-to-play scenarios! 108 full color pages.

(Game Scale: 1 model = 1 vehicle; 1 inch of terrain = 25 yds/meters; 1 game turn = 1 minute battle time.)

DOWNLOAD the unabridged PDF edition for $4.99 at wargamevault.com; look for publisher: GHQ.

WEHRMACHT '47

Wargaming has always been driven by “what ifs.” While our aim is to recreate historical battles, as soon as you take command of your miniature army, everything changes. Let’s face it - our goal is really to re-write history! The Wehrmacht '47® project is a logical next step to bring the concept of exploring alternative historical outcomes to the wargame table, allowing you to experience the “what-if” scenarios that have always fascinated us.

When WWII ended the major combatants had in place ongoing plans for the next generation of military equipment. The Allies produced their designs which became the Cold War military arsenals with which we are familiar. Simultaneously the Germans had their own advanced designs. New weapons systems and new platforms for entire families of equipment were on the drawing boards of Germany’s arms manufacturers.

A few actually saw limited combat, most existed as prototypes and some only as plans and drawings. Had the war taken a different course these weapons would have appeared on the battlefield

These new models, based on actual plans, represent the equipment available to all of the major players in the European Theater of Operations.

Many times in history, a slightly different result to a seemingly minor event would have changed all subsequent outcomes. GHQ makes it possible for you to fight different battles, sometimes on different fronts, with this exciting new Wehrmacht '47® line.

TERRAIN MAKER® GEOMORPHIC TERRAIN KITS - $13.99 PER PACK

Terrain Maker is a craft project, illustrated with easy-to-follow instructions showing you how to create diorama quality terrain that revolutionizes miniature wargaming. Terrain Maker is a geomorphic gaming terrain system based on four inch wide double-density styrofoam hexes. Four thicknesses are available to model different landscapes. Each pack includes enough tree material to make 16 trees.

- TM1 - 24 hexes/pk Standard 1/2" thick hexes used model roads and ground level terrain. Use to base all hill and mountain hexes.
- TM2 - 48 hexes/pk 1/4" thick hexes used to model beaches, lake shores, and open water features.
- TM3 - 12 hexes/pk 1" thick hexes used to model rolling hills and elevations with gentle slopes.
- TM4 - 8 hexes/pk 1½" thick hexes used to model mountains and steep elevations.

TERRAIN MAKER® TREE PACKS $9.75 PER PACK

- TMA1 - Deciduous and coniferous tree instructions and materials for 100 micro trees and hedges
- TMA2 - Palm, etc. tree instructions and materials for 100 micro trees and hedges

AUTUMN TREE PACKS COMING IN OCTOBER!

MICRO SKIRMISH® TERRAIN BOARDS

Perfect for use with Micro Armour and Micro Force 10mm miniatures. Each Micro Skirmish Board is 24 inches wide, 32 inches long with a sturdy plastic top. Now you can move and store games between sessions! Use just one board for a skirmish or combine several for a giant game. This kit provides materials for 3 boards plus 50 unfinished 1/2" flatland Terrain Maker hexes.

TM5 $89.99 +$10.00 oversize shipping charge
(Only available for domestic shipment to the lower U.S. 48 states.)

Why are these sold-out products still in the catalog?

We hope they won't be sold out permanently! Some of the materials needed for these products were from suppliers who closed due to the pandemic. We are working to find new suppliers suited to our purposes. Please check www.ghqmodels.com for availability.

TERRAIN MAKER GROUND COVER

These ground foam shades have been specially formulated for use with GHQ Micro Armour and Micro Force 10mm miniatures, perfect for use in Terrain Maker wargame terrain. Each bag holds enough for 20 square inches of terrain.

PAINTING GUIDE: MICRO ARMOUR & MICRONAUTS

Every miniature collector and gamer develops his own painting style. Here are some surprisingly simple techniques you can use to get really impressive results. An airbrush is very useful but not really necessary to achieve a realistic look. We used GHQ Atmospherics® acrylic paints for these examples, but some modellers prefer enamel paints. These techniques work with either type of paint.

Monochrome Schemes:

Overall Panzer Gray, Russian Green...These are schemes that usually turn out too dark especially if using paint chip colors. Here is a great simple technique. Add depth with a black wash and lighten the overall effect with light gray drybrushing. Mount your assembled model on a nail head for easier handling.

Apply a base coat of panzer gray paint (GHQ's CLR14)

Black wash over basecoat. (15/1 or 15 parts thinner to 1 part black paint.)

Polychrome Schemes:

The navies of World War II usually camouflaged their ships. Here is a wild example. We used fine brushes to paint the patterns.

Research how the original vehicles and ships were camouflaged before painting for the most impressive results.

USN assault craft in the Pacific were painted to blend into the shores of the tropical islands. This LST has a basecoat of sage green.

Camouflage colors are generally added from lightest to darkest: khaki; then forest green; and finally charcoal gray.

Weathering Effects: Military vehicles are generally dusty or muddy. Although you can use the drybrush technique, we highly recommend an Iwata® airbrush for quick, realistic results. Apply a mist of light tan or light gray for dust, reddish brown for mud. Go lightly here, too much is bad. "Dust" will also lighten models that look a bit too dark. Paint a complete unit at a time for uniform colors, "wear," and easy tabletop identification.

For this 1940 French Char B1, we used a base of deep yellow and handpainted patterns in earth brown (CLR3 Camouflage Brown) and hunter green (CLR1 Camouflage Green).

The camouflage colors are outlined with a fine tipped black pen. The mufflers have been "rusted".

Shading with Inks:

Subtle and interesting shading can be created with inks. Unlike washes, they tint more uniformly instead of the pigments concentrating in recesses and missing raised areas. Experiment and practice a bit to achieve the look you want.

The Imperial Japanese Navy rarely used camouflage patterns. This CL Tenryu has a medium gray basecoat (CLR17 Ocean Gray).

This ship had a linoleum deck. The horizontal deck surfaces were painted deep golden yellow and the vertical surfaces touched up with the medium gray.

Airbrushing Polychrome Schemes:

An Iwata® airbrush is great for painting Micro Armour. Whether you have WWII German or British, or most modern armies, start with a base coat of the lightest overall color. Apply stripes of the second color with the airbrush. After handpainting the camouflage details, use the Iwata® to delicately "dust" the vehicle.

Modern Russian schemes have a base color (here we used CLR2 Desert Yellow) over-sprayed with "traditional" dark green (CLR9).

Charcoal gray "squiggles" were then applied with a fine brush to simulate shadows. A fine tipped black marking pen may also be used.

Here we used diluted paint or “washes” in dark colors to create depth. Use the drybrush technique with light colors to accentuate details with highlights. Wipe nearly all the paint off of your brush, then brush the upper surfaces of the model. When the model is finished, you may want to apply a protective coating such as Testors Dullcote to preserve your work. You can further protect your models by storing them in our foam-lined Bunker Boxes.

Drybrush with pale gray (CLR16 Haze Gray) to accent highlights and bring out detail.

Paint in details: tracks - rust with silver dry-brush; men - flesh and green; rubber - charcoal gray. Paint the cab before attaching the tarp.

Mount the tarp on a small nail to paint it gray before gluing to vehicle.

WWII decks were usually dark, in this case “deck green”. After painting the deck, touch up the sage green for a neat appearance.

Details painted: LCVPs - sage green; stacks - gray, then blackwashed followed with a subtle light gray drybrushing.

The LCM-5, tanks, & trucks were painted separately while still sprued and then glued in place to finish the model. The sprue makes very small parts easier to handle while painting.

The dust here has been airbrushed over the vehicle. To add the aerial, a .015” bit in a pin vise was used to drill a hole, a nylon thread glued in and colored with black india ink.

For this winter KV-1 1940: white basecoat, gray wash, and then white drybrush. Road wheels are gray, tracks and cables are rust and silver.

Weathering is applied with washes and some spattered rust brown paint. Acrylics are great here; if too much, clean off with a watery brush.

Chestnut ink, thinned about 1/1 with water, is applied to the deck. Don’t worry if a bit flows down the side - it looks like rust!

Painted details: anchors and anchor chains - rust drybrushed with silver. The model was then black washed using “transparent” black acrylic paint thinned 1/4.

Drybrushed sparingly with off-white, the details leap out at you. Small details will add to the realism. For instance, paint the canvas where the guns enter the turrets and recognition symbols.

Tracks, road wheels, cables, hand tools, etc. were detailed by hand. Black wash and dry-brushing add depth and highlights.

A very light tan was brushed on to the 2S19 Mtsa-S. Airbrush the well-thinned paint from above, then hit the front and rear deck a bit more aggressively.

This BMP-3 uses the same exact sequence. However, the base color is pale greenish turquoise instead of tan. It is designed for northern service rather than on the steppes.

MODELING BASIC MINIATURE TERRAIN

When it comes to gaming terrain, the sky is the limit. The table-top world can be as simple as a piece of green felt with a masking tape road or a more developed geomorphic system (where interchangeable pieces can be re-arranged into different scenarios). These are a favorite with more experienced gamers.

Flatland Hexes: The vast majority of most boards are made of 1/2" thick hexes (TM1). They are used for fields, flat roads, town sites, woods and orchards. All you need are two cans of interior latex wall paint: one a light tan color, and one medium green. The tan paint is the "dirt" and the glue to hold the grass in place. For grass, use GHQ's Terrain Maker® Grass (TMA3). To make different fields, substitute other ground foam for the grass. Roads can be tan (dirt) or a grey (paved). In either case, allow the road to dry before continuing.

Rural roads have ditches. Following the instructions in each TM1 pack, draw pattern with a pencil and then "dig" ditches with a hobby knife.

Paint roads and ditches with light tan latex paint. Allow it to dry. Areas treated this way will have no grass cover. Paint the hex sides green.

Stream Hexes: The Terrain Maker system is unique in that water features have banks, and the water level is lower than the surrounding terrain. Streams and shores are made using 1/4" hexes (TM2). If only 1 bank is used, it's a shore hex. Any number of flat water hexes can be used between the shores, to model anything from Antietam Creek to the Dnieper. Add a few white paint "waves" and make the bank a beach to model an ocean for amphibious assaults. For most water, use a deep blue, like a new pair of denim jeans.

Use a pencil to lay out where the stream will be on the 1/4" hex. Cut the two banks out with a hobby knife.

Pre-paint pieces before gluing. Paint the sloping banks of the cut pieces brown or tan. Paint a blue streambed on another 1/4" hex.

Hill Hexes: Standard TM hills are made using 1" hexes (TM3), but steep hills use 1 1/2" hexes (TM4). Gentle, rolling terrain is made using 1/2" (TM1) hexes. In each case, after cutting the hex into two slope pieces, the slopes are glued to a base 1/2" hex. There are 3 different cuts possible (all illustrated in the instructions with each pack of TM3 and TM4), which produce 5 different geomorphic slope shapes. By rearranging these, an infinite set of hill patterns can be achieved. Since they are separate hexes, they can be repositioned into a new board for the next gaming scenario.

Use a coping saw to bisect each hex following the instructions provided in each pack. Any errors can be glued back together with white glue.

You now have two slopes made from one 1" hex. For rock outcrops gouge the face of the slope with your thumbnail.

Ocean Hexes Another TM advantage is the introduction of a 4" hex pattern on the tabletop. This can greatly speed and simplify game mechanics. If you are a naval gamer, consider creating a set of these beautiful ocean 1/4" (TM2) hexes. After mastering the basic deep-water hex, try painting shoals, sandbars and reefs after the Flexpaste has dried, using tan or turquoise latex paint. Feather the edges with the deep blue. Once dry, wash some deep blue over the shallows. Then gloss coat as shown. Your captains now have some obstacles to contend with while battling on the high seas.

Apply a coat of Woodland Scenics-brand Flexpaste to the entire surface of the 1/4" hex. Tap the surface with your fingertip to make wave peaks.

After the Flexpaste has dried thoroughly, paint the top and sides with deep blue interior latex wall paint. Allow to dry.

GHQ's Terrain Maker® offers a great system, one that is easy to make and is unsurpassed in beauty, flexibility and durability. The basics are covered here, and in the illustrated instructions in every package. Use Terrain Maker® (TM for short) to model the African desert, tropical islands like Tarawa Atoll, the frozen Russian forests and steppes, even the jungles of China, Burma, and Vietnam. You'll be hard pressed to beat Terrain Maker®!

In TM, tan paint is used as the adhesive for the grass. Paint the rest of the hex top liberally, and while the paint is still wet...

...sprinkle with ground foam. Allow to dry. Use white glue and ground foam for bushes, especially in the ditches.

Roads and fields are all done using these simple techniques. Tree material is included in every TM pack.

Glue the two bank pieces to the streambed base 1/4" hex. Finish the hex as you would a flatland hex: grassy top, edges painted green...

...and add details like these: bushes hug the shore, trees flourish by the streambed. A simple bridge and road complete the scene.

For beach hexes, glue only one side of the shore to the base hex. Each TM Tree kit includes detailed instructions for modeling these palm trees.

Glue each slope to a base 1/2" hex (TM1). This raises the base of the slope to the same height as the surrounding flatlands. Use the flatland finishing methods.

This ridgeline is only a quarter of the hill hexes made from one pack of TM3 hill hexes mounted on TM1 base hexes.

For more gentle rises, use 1/2" (TM1) hexes for the slopes. This finished hex is an example. Note the bushes: dots of white glue patted with ground foam.

Add random foam and wave tops by dry-brushing bright white hobby paint.

Coat the top of the hexes with acrylic gloss medium (available in any craft or art supply store. Though it goes on white, it dries clear and shiny!

The ships of the Royal Navy are mounted on metal bases finished the same way. The final effect is much more impressive than a blue cloth ocean!

MODELING DESERT & WINTER TERRAIN

Many of the most famous and exciting campaigns require special terrain to set the stage. The famous actions of the North African and Tunisian campaigns against “the Desert Fox”, Operation Desert Storm, and the savage battles of the Arab-Israeli Wars require desert terrain. Similarly, the bitter actions of the “Winter War” between Russia and Finland, the Stalingrad Campaign, and the Battle of the

The Basic Desert Technique: Very few places, even in the desert, are truly “flat.” Though the majority of any desert board will be 1/2" hexes (TM1), wadis and dunes provide cover for unarmoured vehicles and personnel units. Choose a light tan, nearly beige, interior latex paint for your base. The other supplies you will need will be a large bottle of a rust red-brown acrylic or latex paint, white glue, and a light green ground foam. GHQ also offers sage colored ground foam just for desert bushes!

Paint the top and edges of the hex with light tan/beige interior latex paint. Allow to dry thoroughly.

Using a large soft hobby brush, dot some red-brown paint onto the hex. Dip the brush in water. Clean off most of the paint, and then...

Wadi and Dune Hexes: Wadis are made using 1/4" hexes (TM2). They are dry stream beds. As the surrounding areas are sand, any rainfall that enters the wadi erodes the banks in a very jagged pattern. Only GHQ's terrain system provides a simple, effective way to model this important feature. Remember to occasionally create a scooped bank where vehicles can enter and exit the wadi: in most places, the walls are impassable terrain for wheeled transport.

Use the scrap you cut from the wadi hexes to make dune hexes.

Cut wadi bank pieces as you would for a stream. Use a sharp #11 hobby knife to “notch” erosion into each bank. Glue to a base 1/4" hex.

Add a slurry of Durham Water Putty to the floor of the wadi. Use a butter knife to drag erosion grooves in the putty as shown.

The Basic Winter Technique

All of the standard terrain hex styles are used in a winter board. They will be covered with snow rather than grass; the trees are bare, or snow-covered conifers. Mold deciduous trees from braided picture hanging wire (sold in hardware stores). Use several different thicknesses, especially the heavier gauges to make bare trees which, though fragile, add a great deal of realism to any winter scene.

Though it seems bit silly, paint the basic hex with white interior latex paint. If modeling a road, paint it tan (mud), white (snow), or gray (blacktop).

Mix a THIN wash of 20 parts water to 1 part royal blue acrylic paint. Apply this onto the white hex sparingly to achieve a “cold” effect.

Modeling Ice:

We could just cover ice with snow, but that gets boring. A more pleasing effect is to model translucent, grey ice, occasionally blanketed by drifted snow. Create ponds and rivers using these same techniques. Using all water-based materials makes this an easy project.

To add some detail to the banks, use picture wire to model the brush without summer foliage. Fray a piece of the wire, and “plant” it beside the frozen streambed.

Determine where the stream bed will be on a 1/4" hex. Paint it with a blackwash (10 parts water to 1 part black acrylic paint). Allow to dry.

Glue the bank pieces as shown on page 36. To achieve the translucent icy look, apply a coat of white glue to the stream bed. Repeat as desired.

Bulge can hardly be simulated on a summer wargame table! These compelling historical situations cry out for terrain that sets the mood, and nothing in wargaming does that better than GHQ's Terrain Maker®. Here are the basic steps used to model these environments. Once you get started, you will enjoy making the terrain as much as painting Micro Armour. With a little practice you can make the best gaming scenery in the hobby.

...use the water to smear and wash the dots into blurry stains on the hex top. There should not be any hard red-brown edges. Allow to dry.

Add clumps of grass. Place random dots of white glue and pat green foam onto them. Remove the excess foam. The hex is finished.

Palm trees can be made using the materials and detailed instructions in the TMA1 and TMA 2 tree kits.

Paint tan and allow to dry. Apply the red-brown "blotches" to the bank tops and a wash in the base of the wadi. Add bushes.

Create dunes by gluing the pieces cut from the wadi bank hex to a 1/2" (TM1) hex. Smooth upper edges with a knife and sandpaper and finish.

Use TM3 hexes to make higher hills and escarpments. Your fingernail makes a good tool for creating rough, rocky hillsides.

Dot the open areas with white glue and apply a tan-yellow foam to simulate dried winter grass and bushes.

Creating trees: cut 3" of braided picture wire. Fray 1" using a pointy object, and then twist groups of wires into a branch structure.

Paint tree gray. To plant the tree, poke a small hole clear through the hex. Apply glue and insert trunk. Cut excess off bottom with wire cutters.

Mix some water putty into a thick "milkshake" consistency. Carefully apply drifts to simulate wind-blown snow. Allow to dry completely.

Apply white latex paint to all snow areas of hex, and add ground foam bushes using white glue. Wire bushes can now be glued into the bank.

For snow laden pines, prepare the trees as shown in TM pack instructions. Use downward strokes to apply white paint for snow.
