How to use this Table of Organization and Equipment File

Unit Listings:	Weapon Distribution:	Personnel and Equipment:
1. The 1944 US Medium Tank Battalion is headed with a grey title bar and a box that details a total personnel and equipment muster. 2. Each battalion unit is listed with a grey title bar and boxed. 3. Each unit component is boxed. 4. A component box is placed within the unit box it is subordinate to, and is connected by wire diagram in its position in the chain of command, from top to bottom and left to right. Example: The Assault Gun Platoon is located in the Battalion HQ Company. A Gun Section, however, gets its orders directly from the Platoon HQ. The section box is therefore placed in the platoon box beneath the HQ box and connected to it by line.	1. (p), armed with a pistol. 2. (c), armed with a carbine. 3. (smg), armed with a submachine gun. 4. (BAR), armed with a Browning Automatic Rifle. 5. (grenadier), armed with a rifle and rifle grenade launcher. 6. No designation means the soldier is armed with rifle. 7. Bazookas were not specifically assigned to individual personnel, (there was no bazooka gunner MOS). Bazooka men were chosen by the unit commander. 8. Weapons mounted on a vehicle (i.e. AA machine guns) are so designated. 9. Weapons carried on a vehicle (i.e. bazookas), and intended for dismounted use, are so designated.	1. Ranks are headed in bold type. 2. The number of personnel, and their Military Occupational Specialties (MOS,) within that rank are listed in plain type. 3. Some personnel have multiple MOSs. PFC/PRIVATE One Messenger, jeep driver (smg) This PFC/PRIVATE messenger is also a jeep driver. 4. Vehicles types are listed as follows: VEHICLE One 2 1/2-ton truck =field kitchen This truck is a purpose-built field kitchen, or pulling a kitchen trailer.

UNITED STATES MEDIUM TANK BATTALION (vehicular schematic)

GHQ Pack US15

Medium Tank, M4A3, Sherman

Dimensions:

Length/hull	19 ft 4 ins	Height	9 ft 2 ins
Width	8 ft 7 ins	Weight	66,500 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	26 mph	Range	145 miles
-----------	--------	-------	-----------

Armament:

One 75mm gun, two .30 cal. MGs, one AA .50 cal. MG

Notes

The various Sherman types differed in the following manner: M4 had a welded hull, the M4A1 a cast hull. The M4A4 & M4A6 featured an extended hull and suspension. Later vehicles had sand shields, the wider M34A1 gun mount, and appliqué armor.

GHQ Pack US14

Medium Tank, M4A4, 105mm Howitzer

Dimensions:

Length/hull	19 ft 4 ins	Height	9 ft 2 ins
Width	8 ft 7 ins	Weight	66,500 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	26 mph	Range	145 miles
-----------	--------	-------	-----------

Armament:

One 105mm howitzer and two .30 cal. MGs

Notes

For infantry close support the US Army initially fielded self-propelled 75mm howitzers. For better crew protection and the punch of a bigger gun, the army placed a 105mm howitzer in a M4 turret. Production of howitzer Sherman variants exceeded 5,000 vehicles.

Building a US Armored Infantry Battalion requires various quantities of these GHQ Micro Armour® packs.

Vehicles listed in the T/O & E not currently available from GHQ are slated for future release.

T/O & E research is an ongoing project and GHQ is anxious to obtain information on this topic.

Information on GHQ's new releases can be obtained through GHQ's newsletter, Tac News, or by calling (612) 374-2693.

GHQ Pack US28

Light Tank, M5A1, Stuart

Dimensions:

Length	14 ft 2 ins	Height	7 ft 7 ins
Width	7 ft 4 ins	Weight	33,907 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	36 mph	Range	70 miles
-----------	--------	-------	----------

Armament:

37mm gun, two .30 caliber MGs, one .30 cal AA MG

Notes

By 1942, most World War II combatants had abandoned their light tank formations. The US Army, however, retained its light tank companies. The Stuart made this possible. It was an excellent light tank with a good 37mm main gun and superior armor protection. The design was mechanically sound and very fast.

The M5, driven by twin Cadillac engines, was adopted during February 1942. (The M5 designation was used to avoid confusion with the M4 Sherman) Minor armor modifications resulted in the M5A1, which replaced the M5 early in 1943.

GHQ Pack US51

Halftrack, M3/M3A1, Personnel Carrier

Dimensions:

Length	20 ft 3 ins	Height	8 ft 10 ins
Width	6 ft 5 ins	Weight	25,500 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	40 mph	Range	175 miles
-----------	--------	-------	-----------

Armament:

One AA machine gun

Notes

The M3 and M3A1 seated ten infantry men in the rear compartment and three in the cab. The M2, M3/M3A1, and all variants featured an unditching roller or winch on the front end.

GHQ Pack US30

M31, Armored Recovery Vehicle

Dimensions:

Length	26 ft 5 ins	Height	9 ft 9 ins
Width	8 ft 4 ins	Weight	60,000 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	25 mph	Range	110 miles
-----------	--------	-------	-----------

Armament:

Dummy main and secondary armament

Notes

As heavier tanks entered service, the need for heavier wreckers became evident. During 1942 the US Army adopted the obsolescent M3 Grant/Lee tank for this role. The hull was modified to accommodate a crane arm and winch. All armament was stripped except for a hull-mounted machine gun. Numerous stowage boxes were also added for tools and spares.

Over 800 M31s were built.

GHQ Pack US39

Truck, 3/4-ton, 4x4, Weapons Carrier

Dimensions:

Length	13 ft 11 ins	Height	6 ft 10 ins
Width	6 ft 7 ins	Weight	5,400 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	54 mph	Range	240 miles
-----------	--------	-------	-----------

Armament:

None

Notes

Introduced during 1942, the Dodge 3/4-ton 4x4 range of vehicles were known as Weapons Carriers, Big Jeeps, or "Beeps." It was slightly wider than the jeep and thus carried a reinforced suspension. Despite larger tires, for superior flotation, the weapons carrier presented a lower silhouette than the jeep.

Originally intended to transport the heavy weapons of rifle companies, the weapons carrier proved so successful its role was expanded to light cargo and general purpose truck.

The beep came in many variants, principal of which were the WC51 weapons carrier, the WC56 command and recon vehicles, and the WC64 ambulance.

GHQ Pack US7 and US37

Truck, 2 1/2-ton, 6x6

Dimensions:

Length	22 ft 5 ins	Height	9 ft 11 ins
Width	8 ft 0 ins	Weight	18,424 lbs
		(loaded)	26,320 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	40 mph	Range	165 miles
-----------	--------	-------	-----------

Armament: One AA machine gunNotes

In 1939 the US Army issued a series of new truck design requirements. Truck specifications were divided into four categories: 1/2-ton, 2 1/2-ton, 4-ton, and 7 1/2-ton.

By June 1940 the US Army approved the GMC designed "deuce and a half." Early versions of this vehicle were shipped to Great Britain via Lend Lease.

By 1943 the steel cab was dropped in favor of a soft top canvas tilt. This was done as a space saving consideration for ship board transport, when the trucks were partially disassembled, palletized, and stacked. Remaining hard cabs, including over 100,000 Studebakers, were shipped Lend Lease to Russia.

GHQ Pack US11 and US58 (trailer)

Truck, 1/2-ton, Utility, 4x4, Jeep

Dimensions:

Length	11 ft 0 ins	Height	3 ft 9 ins
Width	5 ft 2 ins	Weight	2,750 lbs

Performance:

Max Speed	65 mph	Range	302 miles
-----------	--------	-------	-----------

Armament:

A wide range of weaponry depending on variant

Notes

During June 1940, the US Army drafted requirements for a "go anywhere" light command and reconnaissance car. After a lengthy evaluation process the contract was awarded to Willys-Overland of Toledo Ohio. Several months into the contract it became apparent that Willys was unable to match production demands. Manufacturing during the war was thus jointly shared between Willys and Ford. A total of 639,245 jeeps were built.

The jeep served in every theater of operations, in scores of field modifications and standardized variants. Via Lend-Lease, it found its way into every Allied army. A military classic; the jeep more than any other vehicle symbolized the American military of World War II.
