SCENTS OF CRAFT

D.S. & Durga, the Brooklyn-based indie perfume line, makes its West Coast debut in Venice, with its first store outside of New York City. “We looked all around L.A., but Abbot Kinney is unbeatable as a foot-traffic haven perched by the wild beauty of the Pacific,” explains cofounder and in-house perfumer David Moltz. Known for weaving a story or a place into each aroma, Moltz adds, “Perfume is armchair travel.” Each fragrance has a playlist, story, photos, and films. The new location’s sandy, glowing tones are a nod to cofounder Kavi Moltz’s favorite Los Angeles architects. The back room is covered in a custom metal finish, showcasing their private reserve, gold label perfumes, and in-store exclusives, like the California-inspired Pacific Mythic Candle, created to envisage an East Coast kid’s vision of Western waves, towering palms, and blooming shrubs, basking in Venice’s vivid sunshine. 1356 Abbot Kinney Blvd., Venice; dsanddurga.com.

MIND YOUR HEAD

Arey, the California-based indie beauty brand dedicated to creating science-backed anti-gray hair products, is adding an innovative scalp exfoliant to their lineup. Scrub is a unique formula containing the Arey Complex (a patent-pending cocktail) along with a blend of salicylic, glycolic, and lactic acids that work together to aid in absorption in the scalp. Use Scrub on days your hair may not need to be cleansed but your scalp needs a refresh. Says hairstylist and cofounder Jay Small, “We deliver to the hair follicle the ingredients necessary to stimulate pigment production, while also creating a healthier more durable hair strand.” areygrey.com.

PENCIL ME IN

Kristie Streicher, brow artist behind some of the most famous feathery arches in Hollywood, has launched a full line of brow care products. The new collection, KS&CO, features a three-step styling system, designed and formulated to create natural-looking, healthy brows. Streicher was determined to make the products as user friendly as possible. Begin with the Microfeathering Brow Pen to stroke in natural looking individual hairs, add texture and buildable color with the Sheer Tinted Brow Gel, and set in place with the Clear Strong Hold Brow Gel. “You’re getting years of my experience and R&D folded into these products,” Streicher says. Used together or on their own, they’re all you need to create her signature brows. From $20. theksandco.com.

Paris meets L.A. in EX NIHILO’s new space.

FRENCH CONNECTION

Parisian fragrance brand Ex Nihilo set its sights on the bustling strip of Sycamore Avenue in Hollywood’s Studio District for the home of their first U.S. boutique. Cofounder Benoit Verdier says the 860-square-foot space reflects their love of the golden era of France in the ‘70s: “We wanted to bring back some French panache—focusing on the best of French craftsmanship as well as bringing the best of technology with a focus on personalization.” 926 N. Sycamore Ave., L.A.; ex-nihilo-paris.com.

BOLD MOVE

West Hollywood recently welcomed Australian boutique fitness brand FLOW ST8 to the neighborhood. The new studio specializes in mixed modality training, combining breath work, yoga, mobility, High Intensity Interval Training (HIIT), strength, sculpt, and meditation. Each class is led by a certified practitioner trained in physical movements, breath work, mindfulness, and biohacking. $33 per class / $279 monthly membership. 8305 Sunset Blvd., West Hollywood; flowst8studios.com.
