"In bygone years I (and other journalists) actually used the catapult at Wirra Wirra to propel whole large watermelons over the (figurative) fence. It's a juicy object to throw 80m or so, and this wine needs no such treatment. It's pillowy, with a come-hither look to its colour, and is full of soft, plummy fruit. Trebuchet is similar."

"Love this beautifully balanced wine. Named for founder Greg Trott, who wanted to build a trebuchet and bomb nearby wineries before he died. Still the legacy is this smooth and effortlessly long shiraz. Lifted floral bouquet with a high energy palate this is just superb."

"There's a deep and fresh feel to this shiraz that has a dark-plum and blackberry core of aromas and flavors, as well as an edge of licorice and tar on the nose. This is concentrated and juicy. Drink or hold."
