Vehicles with styling modifications have traditionally posed a problem for consumers, with a lack of clarity about the effect that aesthetic or performance enhancements have on the residual value.

To increase customer confidence in the added value associated with their vehicle enhancements we have been working with independent trade specialists CAP commissioning a quarterly report to assess the residual value of Project Kahn and Chelsea Truck Company vehicles.

FLYING HUNSTMAN: COACHBUILT VEHICLES

Since the early twentieth century, automotive coachbuilders have created custom vehicles using pre-existing chassis. Whilst names such as Pininfarina, Zagato and Bertone have risen to be globally recognised, in recent years there has been no equivalent in Britain.

Now, we're bringing together our design ethos with traditional techniques and expert craftsmanship to create a modern icon, and leading a resurgence in British automotive design and coachbuilding which is set to challenge the rest of the world.
