Instructions:

Roll out the clay approximately 1/8 to 1/4 inch thick.

Stamp with wood block stamps to create unique impressions.

Cut into circles using a template and knife or a large round cookie cutter.

Lay into a plastic wrap lined pie plate.

Dip your finger in water and smooth the edges.

Set in the sun to dry. When the clay has set, pull them from the pie plate, flip them over and let them finish drying.

Leave them as is or finish them with paints like this:

Spray them with the gloss spray paint on both sides, allowing them to dry in between. I like to do the back first.

Put a teaspoon of paint into a plastic cup along with one to two tablespoons of water. Mix to create a thin paint mixture. Brush over the bowls so the paint seeps into the texture. Wipe away excess paint with a damp paper towel.

Once the white paint is dry, spray again with the clear acrylic sealer.
