The Metaphor of the Pie and Big Pie Thinking!

by Evan Yeh

The Metaphor of the Pie

Oftentimes, when we look at resources we think about the metaphor of a pie. When a pie is sliced we can see what seems to be a scarce resource divided up. Many of us have had this experience in our lives where we receive a slice of pie and immediately compare the size of our slice to the slice that another has received.

This is such a common metaphor for the economic distribution of resources that almost all of us are familiar with it. When we think there is only a pie of limited size, a bunch of potential sources of stress can arise when we begin to divide the pie. What does it mean if I get a smaller slice of pie? Does it mean that my mother who baked the pie, prefers my sibling over me? Am I being punished for something that I did wrong?

Growing the Pie Versus Cutting the Pie

In most resource scenarios it is of tremendous benefit to think about growing the resource rather than dividing a scarce resource. As someone who works in the dance industry where individual private lessons are the preferred method of learning and teaching, it is very easy to fall into “small pie” thinking.

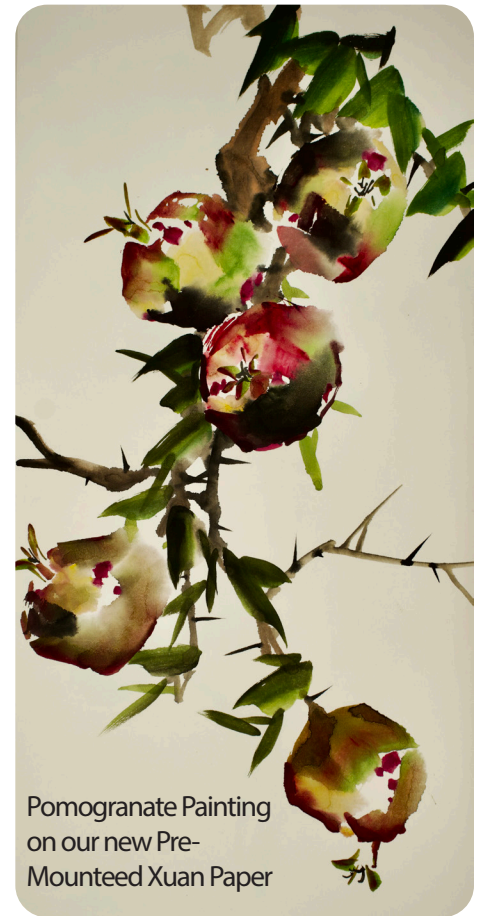

Teachers who believe that students are scarce and that it is very difficult to get new students can ruthlessly compete for the students that exist. They expend tremendous amount of energy bad mouthing other teachers sharing stories about how they are defective in ability or character.

What they do not realize is that all this interpersonal nastiness produces an environment that is repellent to new students and their “small pie” thinking creates a reality where there are only a limited amount of students who can tolerate all the in-fighting to pursue their passion for dance.

On the other hand, the behavior would be very different if they thought there was an abundance of students and they focused on the types of students that they enjoyed and were best suited at teaching. This thinking is metaphorically growing the pie where the size of the slices are unimportant because the pie is so large that everyone can enjoy as much pie as they wish to eat.

Pie Metaphor in Art

The good thing about art is that it is less susceptible to this kind of small pie thinking than many other activities. The quality of art is almost universally thought of as existing in the eye of the beholder. As a community of people with a shared passion for Asian brush painting, it is worthwhile for us to joyfully share out appreciation for the art form with those around us to grow the interest and expand the community of people who are aware and are participating in the art form as artists, students, teachers and patrons.

Book of the Chrysanthemum
by Johnson Su-Sing Chow

Book of the Chrysanthemum by Johnson Su-Sing Chow

The Chrysanthemum doesn't bloom until early autumn and is one of the last flowers to bloom before the frost sets in. It continues to bloom, even when other flowers begin to wither and fade. This Gentleman of Autumn is a symbol of fortitude, defying the chill of the changing seasons.

This book is an excellent resource for beginners, starting with the basic strokes necessary for painting chrysanthemum and building upon those strokes until you complete your own composition in spontaneous and fine line styles.

54 Pages, Chinese/English

M004: Book of the Chrysanthemum $15

White Chrysanthemum by Ling Chi Yeh

Ling Chi uses our new Gold Semi-Sized Colored Xuan for a beginner-friendly lesson on Chrysanthemum. By using a semi-sized paper, strokes will be less absorbent, giving beginners more time to react to each stroke and eliminating some of the "panic" that many face when first trying Chinese Brush Painting.

Gift Giving and Wish Lists

Giving and receiving presents can be a source of distress and anxiety. When we don't clearly communicate what we want, we end up with trinkets that end up in a junk drawer. Telling other people, "Don't get me anything," can be unhelpful if they intend to buy us something regardless.

I have found it helpful to realize that everyone shows love in different ways and some find great joy and satisfaction in buying a gift that they know their recipient will enjoy. Most of us will not actually go around telling people what we actually want, which is why I've found MyRegistry (myregistry.com) to be an extremely helpful tool!

You can create wish lists, linking to the exact page of the item you want, and you can mark items as "purchased" so that no one ends up with duplicate gifts (this feature is hidden from the owner of the wish list). This tool is now integrated into our website and you can add items to your wish list at the click of a button. (It will ask you to log in OR register with myregistry.com. This account is separate from your account with orientalartsupply.com.)

Paint Your Own Cards

Personalized cards can be one of the most meaningful gifts you can give. The past couple of years I have painted on watercolor postcards and given them to friends and family as "thank you", "happy birthday," or even "just because" cards. They are received with such appreciation and they make the person feel so special that I created art with them in mind.

You can paint directly on these cards for a western watercolor paper feel or you can paste your own paintings on top of the card with glue.

If you have a stack of paintings lying around, paste them (or portions of them) onto these cards and brighten someone's day!

Dimensions: 10" x 7" (Folded, the cards measure 5" x 7")

No. of Cards and Envelopes: 10 Each
