

VETRO II: Exploring the Venetian Influence
7 - 29 October

Online Demonstration with Liam Reeves

Join us via Zoom as Liam Reeves demonstrates his skill in interpreting the reticello technique at the furnace on Thursday 20, October at 6.30pm.

Liam is an internationally renowned artist with a passion for exploring pivotal techniques from the rich history of glassmaking. He has demonstrated his skill at public venues including the Victoria & Albert Museum in London.

VETRO II: Exploring the Venetian Influence

This exhibition is our homage to the extraordinary history, tradition, skill and invention of the Muranese glassmakers.

We have challenged several innovative glassmakers to create new works inspired by this theme. The purpose is not to copy, rather to take inspiration from some aspect of Venetian practice and reinterpret this into a new body of work.

Exhibiting artists:

Balázs Telegdi • Bruce Marks • Cathryn Shilling • Charlott Rodgers
David Patchen • Devereux & Patchen • Enemark & Thompson
Hanne Enemark • James Devereux • Laura McKinley • Laura Quinn
Layne Rowe • Liam Reeves • Peter Layton • Sarah Wiberley
Scala & Reeves • Scott Benefield • Sila Yucel
Stephen Foster • Tim Rawlinson

'The rise of temperature change across Europe using observed data can be visualised in more than one way. However there is no doubt that we are following a dangerous path.'

This installation is in two parts: A mosaic visualises the temperature change across Europe for 50 years from 1975-2020; the vessels represent an assembly of European nations, each displaying their own rise in temperature change over 80 years.

It is only by taking action now and working together that we can follow a new temperature path to a sustainable future.'
