

A RUBY LEATHER RIDING PANTS LEGGINGS

November 24, 2015 by Emily — 2 Comments

I pride myself on being a pretty dang good packer. I usually wear everything I bring, don't overpack, and leave a little extra room for purchases on the way home. Yet I all but completely failed when it came to packing for our trip to Paris this fall, and didn't realize it until we got there. While I pictured postcard-perfect 67-degree early September days, we instead hovered around 55 and raining. Oops.

Thankfully, I had thrown in one pair of "pants" with all of those dresses and skirts, and even more fortunately, they are what I'd consider the chicest pants I own: a pair of leather-detailed riding pants leggings that local designer Avra Myers of A Ruby had sent me a couple months before.

Somehow, despite wearing these 5 out of 8 days of the trip, I failed to get any photos in them. Good thing I've also worn them twice a week in the two months since...

That vegan leather trim though.

And yeah you're welcome you're not seeing my face in any of these. I'll tell you about it later.

A Ruby is having a pop-up in Boston THIS WEEK, and you know I'll be headed there to buy these in ~~one two~~ three more colors. Catch these chic basics November 27-29 and December 5 at Michelle Willey in the South End!

A Ruby White Oxford & Pull-On Riding Legging Pant c/o | J.Crew Metallic Flats | Des Petit Hauts Patent Crossbody [similar 1; 2 for purchase in US] | Primark Umbrella [similar]

x,
emily

<http://shellchicd.com/2015/11/24/riding-pants-leggings/>