Welcome to Retro 1951

Fifteen years ago Retro 1951 was inspired by the quality and innovation of a bygone era to introduce its first line of pens. Fashioned after designs reminiscent of the 1950s, the warm familiarity coupled with the durable quality struck a chord with people, and the reception was a success.

Now fifteen years later, we continue to introduce our uniquely inspired products in the same spirit, ever mindful of incorporating the reputation for exquisite quality that reminds us of "the good old days."

Please take a moment to view our newest offerings and notice that we have expanded our line to include a wide range of fine gifts, keeping in spirit with our original idea, innovative designs with the finest of craftsmanship. A careful look will show you why we say, "We make 'em like they used to."

In many eastern cultures, eight is considered the most fortuitous of all numbers. This classic eight-sided design is expertly crafted from the finest materials to provide years of writing pleasure. Choose from a fountain pen complete with iridium nib, twist rollerball with Superbowl refill or the capped fineliner.

The Green Limited Editions are individually numbered and limited to 1951 pieces of each.

Scriptmaster Series II

The second in the Scriptmaster series builds on the tradition of combining timeless design with impeccable craftsmanship to form a fresh new look! The colorful barrels are turned from solid bars of cellulose acetate, and the spring activated clip and rings are heavily plated with the finest platinum or rose gold for long life and beauty. ## CELLULOSE ACETATE

First discovered by Paul Schützenberger in 1865 it has long been known for its strength, deep gloss, and high transparency. Pen enthusiasts also covet cellulose acetate for its warm and "natural" feel in the hand. This is because it's derived from organic materials found in nature, most commonly cotton or wood pulp. Since cellulose comes from renewable resources, it is even biodegradable! However, it should be noted that cellulose acetate, when properly cared for, is one of the most durable and long lasting materials ever utilized in the manufacture of fine writing instruments.

Butterscotch RAD-10

Blue RAD-7

Once called the Material of a Thousand Uses, phenolic resins from the 1920s, 30s and 40s are once again popular. It was inexpensive and so versatile that it became a popular substance of the depression era in the United States. Shortly after World War II, the invention of injection-molded plastics took the place of Bakelite's difficult and expensive heat and pressure manufacturing processes, and the era was over.

Bakelite® is one of several brand names of phenolic resin. The black Radio One is produced from authentic Bakelite, whereas the Butterscotch and Blue are of equally luxurious phenolic resins. Heat resistance, strength, and durability are just a few characteristics that make phenolic resin such an exotic material. Its most striking attributes are the vibrancy and range of colors achieved only with this medium. Over time, the colors will deepen and become more lustrous.

Radio One is styled after the Art Deco period with its geometric lines and curved excellence. No expense was spared in the electronics of this piece. The Radio One boasts a tuner with AFC and tone control, excellent antenna properties, and a speaker sound that will blow you away. A wonderful combination of classic design and new technology, the Radio One is a piece to hand down for generations.

Bakelite® is a registered trademark of Bakelite AG
