Lightning Letters

Four stacks. Twenty cards. It's a race against the clock to spell words to move your cards to the center before your opponents.

Educational Games

How to Play

1. Each player uses a deck of letter cards. They place five cards facedown in four stacks and turn the top cards over. Remaining cards form a stack in their hand.
2. When play begins, players try to form words of three letters or more with the cards in their stacks. When needed, they can flip over the top card in their hand until they find a letter to work with their stacks. When they can form a word, they move those cards to the center and flip over the top card on any open stacks.
3. Players can also form words using cards in the center as long as their cards form words with all letters they touch.
4. The first player to move all cards from their stacks into the center wins.
