Did You Know?

AGE: A male can live to approximately 15 years and a female to 18 years in the wild. They can live longer in human care. You can estimate age by looking at their teeth. Koalas' teeth wear down with age.

EAT: An adult Koala may eat 500g of fresh Eucalyptus leaves or more each day.

EAR TAG: All Koalas that are admitted, treated and released are fitted with an ear tag and microchip. This is for identification for any future admissions and to keep a record of their health.

LIVE: Koalas are found from Cairns, in North Queensland, down along the eastern seaboard to Adelaide in South Australia. Koalas are also found in scattered populations in western Queensland, western New South Wales and inland Victoria.

SLEEP: Koalas conserve their energy by sleeping 18-20 hours a day. This is due to their diet being low in nutrients. It is NOT because they are intoxicated by the Eucalyptus leaves, or that they are lazy.

Rehabilitation Yards

Koalas are treated, rehabilitated and prepared for release back into the wild.

Exhibit Koalas

Patient Board - There are 4 different areas of the Koala Hospital -Exhibit Koalas, Koalas in Rehabilitation, Intensive Care and Home Care. The Patient Board shows the name of the koala, reason for admittance, age, gender, date admitted, problem, cause and treatment.

1. Educational Display - Information about Koalas, their habitat, modern day threats and much more

2. Campbelltown Ella: Campbelltown Ella arrived at the Port Macquarie Koala Hospital in March 2022 as a transfer from WIRES (Wildlife Information Rescue Education Service). She is unfit for release as she has neurological deficits, which means her ability to climb is compromised. We suspect this has been caused from trauma to the brain, most likely from being hit by a motor vehicle.

3. Evans Head CW: This young male koala was observed by a member of the public walking in circles. On examination CW was found to have a ruptured left eye and minor limb injuries consistent with being hit by a car. His left eye had to be removed.

4. Emerald Downs Mary: You will often see her at the top of the tree in her yard. Mary had glaucoma from an injury in her right eye which was so bad that sadly the eye had to be removed. The left eye has shrunken in the eye socket so she is blind. Despite this she still loves to climb, and does so safely.

5. This enclosure is empty

6. Roto Jazz: Roto Jaz is our new joey and was born at the Koala Hospital in April 2022. His parents are Wauchope Jade and Ruins Way Baz (a survivor of the Black Summer 2019 bushfires). Both were permanent residents at the hospital. Roto Jaz's name, just like him, is the perfect mixture of Jade and Baz!

7. Shelly Beach Road Trish: She is a young female joey who was found in February 2023 after a microburst storm hit Port Macquarie. She was observed climbing with what seemed to be a paralysed forearm. Koala Conservation Australia's (KCA) team rescued her and brought her back to the Koala Hospital in Port Macquarie.

8. This enclosure is empty

9. Maria River Road Jan: In late summer of 2019 a small male joey was found curled up in the middle of the road and was lucky not to have been hit by a car. Jan (pronounced Yarn) was very underweight, anaemic, had a distended abdomen and was worm infested. He responded well to treatment but is not suitable for release.

10. Murwillumbah Bobby: Bobby was attacked by a dog and had lost feeling and movement in his right hindlimb. He was treated with massage, acupuncture, laser therapy and physiotherapy with Friends of the Koala in Lismore and is now able to use his injured hind leg to some degree. He did not recover his climbing and jumping abilities enough to survive in the wild so he was transferred to Port Macquarie Koala Hospital.

Training Yard. Ruins Way Baz: During the peak of the 2019/20 bushfires, National Parks and Wildlife service personnel were fighting these fires when two of their team came across a little burnt koala sitting on the side of the track. Staff named him "Baz" after one of the firefighters. He was quite badly burnt with partial to full thickness burns on his hands, feet and nose. Baz struggled for many weeks to cope, with staff fearing that we may lose him. Unfortunately the extent of his burns has resulted in permanent loss of claws on his hands and feet, plus scar tissue on digits and his chin. He is unable to climb large trees although he can manage trees narrow trunks quite well.
