

John Hamm Joins ClearView Audio's Board of Directors

The Expanding Company Adds Music Industry Insider and Grammy Foundation Board Member At the Launch of the Award-Winning Clio Bluetooth Speaker

Wellesley, Mass. – January 6, 2014 – ClearView™ Audio, the creators of Clio™, the multi-award winning “invisible” Bluetooth speaker, announce today the addition of John Hamm to its board of directors. John Hamm is currently a board member of the Grammy Foundation and former CEO of PonoMusic. The addition comes as the Massachusetts-based audio company launches Clio, the first wireless invisible speaker.

"I am honored to serve on the Board of one of the most innovative new companies in the audio industry," Hamm said. "These products will transform the way consumers enjoy music in their homes, and I look forward to working with the ClearView team to realize their compelling vision."

Mr. Hamm is a Silicon Valley veteran and the managing director for the investment group, Soda Rock Partners.

"The entrepreneurial vision, thought leadership, and creativity that John will bring to ClearView Audio is exciting," says ClearView Audio's CEO Stefan Bokamper. "He's a leader in the audio and music industry who expands our network of technology, entertainment and investment resources on the West Coast."

Mr. Hamm joins ClearView Audio just as the company builds momentum at retail. The speaker enjoyed a tremendously successful launch at the 2014 Consumer Electronics Show, winning two highly coveted editorial awards including "Best in Show: Audio Category" from Engadget and the "Editor's Choice Award" from Reviewed.com/USA Today. Additionally, ClearView Audio was recognized by the CEA as a 2014 CES Innovations Design & Engineering Honoree in advance of the show.
