Building off our collective momentum, it’s so important to not only continue talking about mental health, but to take action in any way we can. Whether we’re sharing a social post filled with mental health resources, advocating for change, checking in on a loved one, or making a donation, every act makes a difference and that’s what making a rare impact is all about. We truly believe in a future where all people will have the support they need to take care of their mental health, and we can’t wait to get there together.

Each of us has the power to make an impact, but as a community, we have the power to make a Rare Impact. We thank you for being on this journey with us.

With Gratitude,

Elyse Cohen
VP Social Impact & Inclusion, Rare Beauty
President, Rare Impact Fund

Since the launch of Rare Beauty, we’ve been committed to leveraging beauty as a tool to make a difference in the world, primarily around mental health and self-acceptance. The need for more mental health education and resources for young people has never been more apparent than it is today. As we reflect on our growth, all that we’ve accomplished, and learned in 2022, we couldn’t be more excited to continue this important work of breaking down the stigma associated with mental health and expanding access to mental health resources for young people.

Together with our incredible community, employees, and partners, we expanded the Rare Impact Fund globally and donated more than $2 million to 16 grantees worldwide, providing thousands of young people in underserved communities everywhere with the support they deserve.

Together, we continued to educate our communities near and far, launching our Your Words Matter campaign to educate over 85,000 people about the importance of word choice, and co-hosting the first White House Mental Health Youth Action Forum to bring together young leaders from across the nation for a critical discussion about how to drive mental health awareness into action.

We kicked off our first Rare Impact Ambassador program, mobilizing 28 youth mental health advocates. From classrooms to board rooms, we led efforts to spark a dialogue in beauty and beyond about mental health, learning to view mental illness from a place of understanding and acceptance. As a result, we’re working to create a culture where young people can seek support, no one feels alone, and we can all make a difference.

From our founder and mission; our products and people; our community and creators—Rare Beauty is leveraging who we are as a brand to make a difference in beauty and beyond.

Mental Health Virtual Event

This first event of its kind kicked off our Your Words Matter campaign to educate on the power that our words can have on others’ mental health. Joined by experts from our Rare Beauty Mental Health Council—as well as NYT Best-Selling Author Jay Shetty, Editor-In-Chief of Allure Jessica Cruel, and Mental Health Advocate & Content Creator Whitney Simmons—we raised awareness around the importance of word choice, taking steps to create a culture that’s more mindful of our collective mental health.

White House Youth Mental Health Action Forum

We co-hosted the first-ever Youth Mental Health Action Forum at the White House in partnership with the Biden Administration and MTV, bringing together our founder Selena Gomez and 30 young leaders across the nation for a critical discussion about how to drive mental health awareness into action. Selena met with President Biden, Dr. Biden, and the U.S. Surgeon General following the event to discuss the growing importance of youth mental health.
