Trilling Chipmunks, Beckoning Blooms, Salty Butterflies, and other Sensory Wonders of Nature

Nancy Lawson

Nature writer and naturalist Nancy Lawson takes readers on a fascinating tour of the vibrant web of nature outside our back door—where animals and plants perceive and communicate using marvelous sensory abilities we are only beginning to understand. Organized into chapters investigating each of the five senses, Lawson's exploration reveals a remarkable world of interdependent creatures with amazing capabilities.

You'll learn of ultrasound clicks humans can't hear, and ultraviolet colors humans can't see. You'll cross paths with foraging American bumblebees drawn to the scent of wild bergamot, urban sparrows who adapt their mating song in response to human clamor, trees that amp up their growth in response to deer and moose saliva, and a chipmunk behaving like the world's smallest pole vaulter to nab juicy red berries hanging from the lowest parts of a coral honeysuckle vine.

Synthesizing cutting-edge scientific research, original interviews with animal and plant researchers, and poetic observations of her own garden, Lawson shows us how to appreciate the natural environment from the perspective of our wild neighbors right outside our door and beyond, and how to nurture the habitats they need to survive.

Making Camp

A Visual History of Camping's Most Essential Items and Activities

Martin Hogue

For camping enthusiasts, this fascinating (and packable) volume holds a comprehensive look at the origins of the practice and the gear that brings all these enthusiasts together.

From the early days of recreational camping in the late nineteenth century through the multitude of modern camping options available today, Making Camp explores the history and evolution of the popular activity through the lens of its most important and familiar components: the campsite, the campfire, the picnic table, the map, the tent, and the sleeping bag, as well as the oft invisible systems for delivering water and managing trash.

Find out how early nineteenth-century German peasants fashioned rudimentary sleeping bags by burrowing into bags full of leaves for the night. Look back over several millennia to learn about the progression of tents from animal skins, goat's hair, and heavy canvas to featherweight nylon. Learn about the ways in which the skills to build and maintain a campfire have been displaced by the portable gas stove. Pinpoint the details of the essential campground map and its unique place in the camping imagination.

A visual exploration and history of one of America's favorite pastimes.

Each chapter includes a broad range of visuals to help illustrate the rich history of camping and our collective devotion to it, including drawings, patents, diagrams, sketches, paintings, advertisements, and historical photographs. A must-have for avid campers, nature lovers, and all who seek to connect with the universe by sleeping under the stars.

Searching for Sunshine

Finding Connections with Plants, Parks, and the People Who Love Them Ishita Jain Foreword by Wendy MacNaughton

When Ishita Jain relocated to the visually overwhelming and concrete-filled New York City from New Delhi, India, she found solace in parks and gardens and started thinking about how important these places are to city residents' sense of peace. In Searching for Sunshine, Jain follows her curiosity and creativity to provide a vibrant compilation of essays, illustrations, and interviews centered around the simple yet compelling theme of why and how plants and green spaces create such meaning for us.

Whether living in a setting that is urban, rural, or somewhere in between, everyone can find enjoyment in the beautiful illustrations and stories gathered here. Featuring conversations with experts and plant-lovers alike, including scientists at the New York Botanical Gardens, groundskeepers at the famed Green-Wood Cemetery, shoppers at the beloved Union Square Greenmarket, a director of NYC Parklands, a florist, and more, Jain's exploration of plants and parks in New York City demonstrates how nature is vital to all experiences of our lives.

A Journal for Single Moms

Beth Raymer

Illustrated by Laura Harrison

There are an estimated 15 million children being raised by single mothers in the United States. Yet single mothers are deeply underserved when it comes to celebrating their triumphs and sharing the trials and challenges of being a single parent in today's world.

Acclaimed author, journalist, and single mom Beth Raymer hopes to change that. She brings her signature wit, honesty, and wisdom to this unique resource that gives single mothers the most important tool of all: a voice.

This thoughtful journal encompasses both an inspiring personal reflection on the single-motherhood journey and a practical guide for any single mom—whether by choice, following divorce or widowhood, working, stay-at-home, or any other personal circumstance—to feel empowered and confident. In addition to featuring inspiring quotes from a wide range of women, the journal includes prompts that explore the consciousness and experience of single moms, wherever they are in their journey toward building satisfying and successful lives with their children.

A beautifully designed guided journal specifically for single moms, by critically acclaimed author and single mom Beth Raymer.

At what point did it fully occur to you that you'd be raising your children) on your own? Pays special attention to your dawning or awakening and the forces or circumstances that brought you to your epiphany.

As single mothers, we often find ourselves falling into rigid routines. Keeping a very tight schedule, often for years at a time, can seem like the only way to keep our lives on track. By doing things like picking up our child immediately after work and putting in more hours after our child goes to bed, we sacrifice spontaneity, and all the spunk and flavor it can shake up.

A Garden's Purpose

Cultivating Our Connection with the Natural World Félix de Rosen

The garden provides a powerful, generous way of looking at the world. Through stories and essays, this gracious volume, written in a highly accessible tone, invites readers on a journey to understand gardens as places where we build mutually beneficial relationships with the living world around us.

As beautiful spaces, gardens fill us with hope and wonder. As gathering places, they nurture friendships and communities. Thoughtfully crafted, they make us pause and appreciate our surroundings. Full of edible plants, they nourish us. Full of diversity—human and nonhuman—they connect us with the polychromatic world in which we live. They make us feel at home in our own bodies, in our cities, and on our planet.

Each chapter in this book is dedicated to a specific idea or element of the garden, from places where gardens grow (i.e., a driveway in San Francisco, a bathtub as a planter) to garden management (why some lawns need watering every few days and some gardens can go almost a full year without irrigation) to color and texture (how fine-textured plants like grasses can be used to unify a space) and everything in between. Hundreds of gardens from all corners of the globe are included, photographed in glorious full color.

Essays and stories to inspire us to nurture diverse, meaningful relationships with gardens and landscapes.

Perfect for home gardeners, landscape designers, or as a gift for the gardener in your life, this is an ode to the wonder, design, and habitat of gardens and an inspiration to nurture meaningful relationships with the natural world around us.

Why You'll Never Find the One

And Why It Doesn't Matter Sarah Akinterinwa

This illustrated dating guide by cartoonist Sarah Akinterinwa, rooted in her experiences as a Black woman in her late twenties, encourages readers to be introspective, honest, and practical in their love lives. Through vignettes with scenes from modern dating, the book's main character walks the reader through the ins and outs of being single, defining what you want in a partner, navigating dating apps, the value of therapy, contending with family expectations, and remaining optimistic about finding a relationship that's right for you.

The book includes cheeky illustrated sidebars and commentary, such as:

- A recipe for the perfect partner
- Updated love languages
- Dating affirmations you didn't know you needed
- Advice for taking yourself on solo dates
- And more, all with an inclusive perspective on race, sexuality, and body image

A funny and affirming illustrated guide, in New Yorker cartoonist Sarah Akinterinwa's signature style, that offers a unique approach to finding love (or not).

The stories, practices, and tips in this guide offer support for the lovelorn millennial, and anyone wading through the challenges of dating and being single in today's world, leaving the reader with the recognition that there might not necessarily be "one" perfect partner or way to be in a relationship, but rather many possibilities—in dating and in life.

Capturing Nature

150 Years of Nature Printing

Matthew Zucker, Pia Östlund

Hailed as the earliest precursor to photography, nature printing is the practice of using impressions from the surface of natural objects such as leaves, flowering plants, ferns, seaweed, snakes, and more to produce an image. Editor Matthew Zucker has spent decades curating the most extensive collection of nature prints ever assembled, with more than 13,000 images across 130 rare and seminal works, including journals, published books, unique manuscripts, American currency, and instructional texts related to nature printing from 1733 to 1902.

This gorgeous volume, co-edited with Pia Östlund, explores Zucker's collection, allowing readers to see nature prints presented side by side for the first time and enabling unique comparisons while creating a visually stunning journey through the developments over a 150-year period in printing methods, including photography and cyanotypes. The ultimate guide to nature printing, this is a beautiful reference work for scholars, artists, designers, botanists, and anyone interested in nature, botanical illustration, and printing.

A landmark visual exploration of nature printing, featuring 45 different techniques and hundreds of astonishing rare images.

How to Be a Design Student

(And How to Teach Them)

Mitch Goldstein

Foreword by Jarret Fuller

Life as a design student is filled with questions. Rochester Institute of Technology Associate Professor of Design Mitch Goldstein has many answers, shared in clear, clever, and sage advice that is helpful for students at any level of their education, as well as anyone thinking about attending design school and wondering what it's really all about.

For design students and art professionals, Goldstein is a brilliant resource for real-world thoughts about design school and creative practice. Drawing on sixteen years of teaching design and his popular "Dear Design Student" Twitter project, Goldstein explores all aspects of how to get the most out of the school experience and beyond as a creative professional.

From collaboration and critiques to practice and process, this is an inspiring roadmap for design students as well as a valuable guide for design professors to help them understand how to shape curriculum from a student's perspective and better the collaborative experience.

Designer, artist, and educator Mitch Goldstein's experience as student and teacher give guidance and inspiration to help students get the most out of design school.

Sky-High

A Critique of NYC's Supertall Towers from Top to Bottom Eric P. Nash

Photographs by Bruce Katz

New York City's penchant for building skyward has reached new heights with its crop of supertall towers—those that rise at least 984 feet above the sidewalk. The city that never sleeps is also the city that never stops building ever higher, from the Woolworth and Chrysler buildings of an earlier race to the top to today's super-luxury aeries of 57th Street's Billionaires' Row and the towers of the World Trade complex in Lower Manhattan.

Bruce Katz's extraordinary photographs capture a dozen of these self-styled odes to wealth and power, alongside Eric P. Nash's incisive critique documenting the evolution of the skyline, past and present, and the supertalls' transformative effects on the contemporary cityscape. Among the twelve buildings featured are One World Trade Center, Three World Trade Center, 30 Hudson Yards, 35 Hudson Yards, One57, 432 Park Avenue, 53West53, Central Park Tower, and One Vanderbilt.

Part architectural guidebook and part critique, Sky-High documents the supertall towers that are transforming New York City's skyline as well as its streets.

MY NATURE STICKER BOOKS

My Nature Sticker Activity Books present a range of interactive activities and stickers that keep children entertained for hours. A quiz at the end of each book tests their knowledge of the fun facts they have learned.

"The first time you show your little nature lovers these books, do not let them know there are stickers involved.

Because these are the rare activity books that can hold their own on the quirky, information-packed writing and exquisite artwork alone."
