ENGLISH BEAM DINING TABLE

Using reclaimed timbers salvaged from building sites across the UK, this old wood is approximately 100 years old. Once used in pillars, joists and beams of structures from barns, distilleries, industry halls and schools, the arduous process of reclamation starts at a demolition site, where precious sections are recovered, to be carefully restored. Sorting and de-nailing by hand, all the while preserving the natural surface, revive these timbers to a state at which they can be then repurposed to once again support new lifestyles.
