

DANGEROUS GOODS BY ROAD & RAIL AWARENESS - ADG

WHAT YOU WILL NEED FOR YOUR TRAINING:

Copy of the ADG Code - This Australian Dangerous Goods Code (edition 7.5, 2017) sets out the requirements for transporting dangerous goods by road and rail. The Code is compulsory from 1 January 2017.

We provide student workbooks and worksheets.

As this is LIVE ONLINE training, you will also require

- internet connection
- photo ID (needs to be scanned and emailed to us prior to training)
- EITHER desktop computer + microphone + headset (or computer + phone line to call free number)
- OR laptop + microphone + headset (or laptop + phone line to call free number)

TRAINING INFORMATION:

An email will be forwarded to you with a link for the training. Simply click on the appropriate link for the training and follow the instructions.

A toll-free number will be supplied, but it is strongly advised that you use a headset and speakers for the training.

A copy of the workbook will be made available for downloading and it is a requirement that you have a copy available when you join the training sessions. You may print the workbook as many times as you prefer.

On completion of each session, we will be completing your workbook and your instructor will be displaying their workbook on screen showing the answers that you should have inserted. There will be time allowed for open discussion with your instructor regarding questions and answers and further clarification should you experience any difficulty in understanding any elements of the training that has been covered. Remember, this training is LIVE, you may ask questions at any time during the training.
