tvami is a women-led social enterprise that brings to you the joy of everything handmade. Inspired by the Sanskrit phrase, 'Tat Tvami Asi', which means a spirit of universal oneness, tvami is an amalgam of 'tvam' i.e., you and 'i' - the artisans. Our aim is to simply connect talented indigenous artisans to a discerning global audience that appreciates traditional arts and crafts.

tvami works with scores of small and marginalised artisans, residing in remote corners of India, who have been painstakingly preserving age-old crafting traditions close to their original form. The curated list of articles included in this catalogue are handmade with love by these artisans. Each craft that we bring to you has a unique story to tell and is deeply rooted in our history and culture. We strive to help the safe-keepers of this rich heritage earn a significant premium for their hard-work and prosper through their art.

This journey is an impactful one and we would love for you to be a part of it.

This calendar celebrates the six rtús or seasons of India in the eternal Madhubani artform. tvami worked closely with two talented artists, Sheela Devi and Ratneshwar Jha, who thoughtfully represented the rtús through their art, based on their reminiscence of each one.

The paintings in the calendar are a digitised representation of the ones hand-painted by Sheela and Ratneshwar. Apart from the remuneration received for their artworks and design contributions, the artists receive royalty for each print of the calendar.

The calendar represents our constant endeavour to connect tvam - our customers, to their cultural roots, while empowering 'i' - the many artisans across India, through their arts and crafts.

Assamese Handloom Weaving, Assam

Home to prestigious varieties of silk from muga to eri, handloom weaving in Assam using silk and other materials is well renowned for its vibrancy and fine finishing.

C

Cheriyal Paintings, Telangana

Once, a hallmark of storytelling-folk artists of Telangana, the art form of Cheriyal scroll paintings of yesteryears is being preserved in smaller formats in contemporary times.

Gond Chitrakala, Madhya Pradesh

The artform practiced by India's largest Adivasi clan - the Gonds, is distinguished by artfully drawn lines, dots and dashes that evoke a sense of movement in a still painting

L

Leather Puppetry, Andhra Pradesh

In the 16th century Andhra, colourful leather puppets made using goat skins remarkably combined theatre and painting. Today, vibrant lampshades carry forward the same artisanal heritage.

B

Bengal Dokra, West Bengal

Named after the traditional metalsmiths of West Bengal viz. Dokra Damar tribe, these articles are made using the lost-wax casting technique that traces back to the Harappan civilisation.

E

Etikoppaka Toys, Andhra Pradesh

Wooden toys and souvenirs chiseled from soft Ankudu wood, native to Etikoppaka village in Andhra. Their characteristic glossy sheen is achieved by careful application of lac-infused pigment.

Gourd Craft, Karnataka

The humble gourd doubles up as a canvas for a talented group of artisans from Karnataka. Products such as the lampshades they create serve as a fine example of circular economy principles.

M

Madhubani Paintings, Bihar

The pride of Mithila region, the centuries-old artform prominently features Radha-Krishna. Traditionally, only women would practice it and are largely credited for enhancing its stature.

Bidri, Karnataka

Illuminating beauty in contrasts, Bidri artefacts are brought to life by inlaying pure silver in an alloy of zinc and copper, blackened using the unique soil of bidar.

G

Gambhira Masks, West Bengal

Central to West Bengal's ceremonial 'Gambhira' dance, the face masks hand-carved using lightweight 'Gamari' (white teak) wood, have gained popularity as wall accents.

J

Jamdani, West Bengal

Characterised by rich motifs, the handweaving technique used in Jamdani textiles is considered to be the most complex, earning them the stature of being the finest muslin textiles in the world.

Madurkathi Table Mat, West Bengal

Believed to have been collected as revenue under the Jagirdari system in the 18th century, these mats are woven using the locally available madur kottiri reed, and are renowned for their durability.

Bamboo Basketry, West Bengal

The fastest growing plant, cut and whittled into stripes, which are then woven into desired shapes and utility items with immense skill and meticulousness.

Ganjifa Cards, West Bengal

Ganjifa cards were once the most popular card game played in the Mughal era. Following Patachitra style of painting done on layers of cloth, these enjoy fanfare among art and craft connoisseurs today.

K

Kalamkari Block Print, Telangana

From preparing the handloom cloth base, using wood blocks to print patterns to treating it with alum solution for fixing colours, each kalamkari textile is a beautiful labour of love.

Mysore Ganjifa Paintings, Karnataka

Hand painted ganjifa cards with mythological characters from Indian scriptures were popularly used to play ancient card games. The art form thrives today in the form of collectibles and décor items.

P

Pashmina, Jammu and Kashmir

Woven with threads spun out of 'Pashm' - the fine fleece found on the underbelly of a particular breed of the Himalayan goat - Pashmina textiles are the epitome of timeless elegance.

Patachitra, West Bengal

Literally translating to 'Cloth Painting', one of the most vibrant styles to emerge from the sub-continent.

Pattamadai Table Mats, Tamil Nadu

Best described as woven poetry, these mats are a distinct interplay of silk or cotton threads in the warp and korai grass, a reed native to the region, in the weft.

Pen Kalamkari, Andhra Pradesh

Kalamkari involves the use of metallic salts called mordants, applied with a pen, to bind the dye to the cotton fibres. The narrative paintings mostly depict deities and mythological tales.

R

Rogan Art, Gujarat

The 400-year-old textile art is practiced by only a sparse group of skilled artists in Kutch, Gujarat, using thick and shiny paints made by adding colour pigments to boiling castor oil.

S

Sabai Grass and Date Palm Leaf Basketry, West Bengal

Women from Bengal and Odisha are leading the growth of this eco-friendly craft, creating baskets, trays and more using the locally cultivated, high-tensile natural fibres.

Sanjhi Art, Uttar Pradesh

Sanjhi stencils from Mathura, traditionally used to make Rangoli have moved on to walls as exquisite artwork. The craft continues to be deeply entwined with the worship of Lord Krishna.

T

Toda Embroidery, Tamil Nadu

An embroidery form zealously protected and practiced by Toda women, a pastoral community in the Nilgiris. The geometric precision in design achieved through free-hand skills is simply amazing.

U

Upcycled Metal Art, West Bengal

Décor and utility items created using scrap metal derived from articles once considered redundant. These collectibles represent the ethos of sustainability and circular economy.

W

Warangal Handloom Dhurries, Telangana

Perhaps the most elegant dhurries to come from the Deccan, their origin can be traced back to the 1600s and are characterised by their symmetrical geometric patterns.
