Wolf Hill Garden Center is proudly a family owned and operated business. After starting a landscaping company in 1978, brothers Jim & John McKechnie saw the need for a Garden Center on Cape Ann. With the help of family and friends, they put time and effort into starting a store in addition to their landscaping company in Gloucester, MA. In 1998, they opened their second Garden Center in Ipswich, MA. As Jim and John grow older, their children are very involved in the company, and continue to run Wolf Hill as a family business. The landscape division has retired, but the Garden Centers are both continuing on with the help of their children, as well as their very loyal and dedicated employees. We are so fortunate to have the crew of employees we have, who we value tremendously!

Both Wolf Hill locations are open year round and stock a great variety of things for your garden and landscaping needs. We are happy to sell to both retail and wholesale customers, and proudly offer exceptional customer service to both! Since New England has such wonderful weather giving us 4 different seasons, our business changes with each season. In the spring and summer, we offer a vast selection of nursery stock (trees, shrubs, annuals, perennials, vegetables, herbs, houseplants, tropicals, bulbs etc.), landscape materials (bulk materials: mulch, loam, stone, sand & compost; cobblestones, landscape edging, sod, pavers, grass seed, and much more), garden center products (fertilizers, pesticides, seeds & seed starting products, pest/rodent repellents, garden & landscaping tools, gardening gloves, gardening hats and shoes, etc.), pottery, statuary, birdbaths, outdoor furniture, garden accents (flags, spinners, solar stakes, etc.). In the fall, we still offer a great selection of all the things we offer in the spring & summer, but we also bring in a lot of decor to decorate your home for the fall - such as pumpkins, mums, gourds, corn stalks, scarecrows, etc. In addition to that, we offer seasoned & kiln dried firewood to buy now for winter burning or for your cool fall nights. In the winter, we turn into your Christmas wonderland. We have fresh & artificial Christmas trees, wreaths, urns & container arrangements, winter shrubs and trees, Christmas lights, Christmas tree stands, ornaments & gifts. We continue to offer kiln dried firewood & fire starting products, some landscape materials (sand, road salt, road pack, stone dust, 3/4" & 3/8" stone), garden center products, our pottery & statuary are still shoppable, but it's a much smaller selection because we haven't received in our spring products yet. Our Ipswich location has a 2-story gift shop that shouldn't be missed!

We'd like to take this opportunity to say, thank you! Even if you have not shopped with us yet, we appreciate you taking the time looking through this catalog & thinking of us to do your business with. We hope it is helpful to you! Please feel free to contact us if you have any questions about this catalog. We are happy to help in any way that we can!

Thank you,
Brittany Malgeri & Lauren Decoste

Why Isn't My Hydrangea Blooming?

The most common reason for hydrangeas failing to bloom is incorrect pruning. Varieties that bloom on new wood (H. arborescens & H. paniculata) should be pruned in the fall or late winter if needed and can take heavy pruning. Varieties that bloom on old wood (H. macrophylla, H. serrata & H. quercifolia) should be minimally pruned or deadheaded in summer. Blooms for the following year are set in August and September. Stalks killed off in winter can be pruned out, but we recommend waiting until late May / early June since stalks often appear dead at the ends but are, in fact, still alive and will produce blooms along the stem.

In our climate, the other culprit is cold weather. Terminal flower buds are often killed off by extreme cold or frosts occurring late into spring. While "reblooming" varieties may still flower on lateral buds, blooms will not be as large or prolific as the terminal bud flowers. H. paniculata and H. arborescens varieties are generally unaffected by cold weather.

Another problem to watch out for is over fertilization. When hydrangeas are exposed to high amounts of Nitrogen (found in most commercial fertilizers) they respond by growing more leaves than flowers. We recommend cutting back on fertilizers high in Nitrogen and adding Super Phosphate, Triple Super Phosphate or Bone Meal.

RHODODENDRONS

Rhododendrons are excellent plants for shady areas and are available in a wide range of sizes and colors. Some varieties can also be planted in the sun. In general, small leaf varieties can take more sun than the larger leafed types, but there are exceptions which are noted in the descriptions below. Rhododendrons are acid loving plants. As such they perform best when the soil is acidic (with a pH between 4.5 and 6.0). They need well-draining soil with an abundance of organic matter. Many Rhododendrons are eaten by deer (with the exception of PJM varieties which have highly aromatic leaves) and should be protected in winter with netting or repellent spray. Rhododendrons also benefit from the application of an anti-desiccant like Wilt-Pruf in winter months.

USDA PLANT HARDINESS ZONES

The 2023 USDA Plant Hardiness Massachusetts Zone Map is the standard by which gardeners and growers can determine which plants are most likely to thrive at a location. The map is based on the average annual minimum winter temperature, divided into 10-degree F zones. Northeastern Massachusetts is located within USDA Plant Hardiness Zone 6b. However, we have found that Zone 6 plants are susceptible to winter damage in our area. In general, we recommend purchasing plants which are hardy to Zone 5b. South-facing, sheltered areas are suitable for Zone 6b plants. Zone 2-4 plants should be used for container plantings that are intended to remain outside year-round.
