• How to use

-This is a cooking chopstick stand made of stainless steel.

-The cylindrical part and the saucer part can be removed. "Hazure (remove and failure)" is the opposite of "Atari (hit and success)" and is not a very auspicious word in Japanese. However, in order to think of interesting things that are far from common sense, it is necessary to remove the framework of stereotypes, and free ideas are very fun. The name is a bit ironic that what the majority of people want is not always the right answer. Todoro hopes that Hazure will be a "success" for someone who picked this up.

-If this gets dirty, wash this with a neutral detergent for tableware.

*Not recommended for use with liquids inside.

*Because this is heavy, please be careful not to drop this.
