MIKE HARRIGAN

CHIEF, FBI FIREARMS TRAINING UNIT/PROGRAM (RET.)

"I've seen many firearm modifications come down the line as head of the firearms program at the FBI...this one is truly the most revolutionary from a weapon-safety and risk mitigation perspective."

Harrigan has over 30 years of service in law enforcement and military experience as a FBI agent, local police officer, and US Army MP with multiple deployments. Mike recently concluded his 22-year career with the FBI as Chief of the Firearms Training Program at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Virginia where he led the delivery of basic firearms training to all New Agent Trainees and oversight of nearly 1,500 firearms instructors at FBI offices nationwide.

As a highly-skilled firearms and tactics expert, Mike was a member of the FBI's Shooting Incident Review Group, where he reviewed each occasion where a firearm was discharged by an FBI agent or task force officer. He spearheaded a comprehensive study on the use of force at the FBI, analyzing and categorizing hundreds of these incidents. The resulting data was utilized to drive innovations in training to increase the operational effectiveness of the FBI's armed personnel and reduce the occurrence of accidental/negligent discharges.

His impressive background includes his tenure as Chief of the FBI National Academy (FBINA) as well as serving as Chief of the Violent Criminal Apprehension (ViCAP) program at the National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime (NCAVC).

Mike is a recognized law enforcement subject matter expert and expert witness. His intimate working knowledge and experience in law enforcement and firearm operation and training make him an ideal spokesman for the benefits of RTS.

STEVE BRIGNOLI CAPTAIN, US ARMY - SFOD-A

“It took me 3 minutes to get used to the RTS TriggerShield after around 20 years of muscle memory training without it...Imagine if this was trained with from day one.”

“I’ve trained and shot with it, and have done so with Tier 1 Operators with many more years of experience. One aspect remains the same, it does not limit functionality or lethality.”

Steve Brignoli is a former US Army Special Operations Officer with multiple deployments and field experience. He is also an established businessman and the Managing Director of HOPE. As the CEO and Founder of Beyond SOF, a Service Disabled Veteran Owned Small Business (SDVOSB), Mr. Brignoli provides special applications and solutions primarily to businesses and federal government in the national security sector.

Mr. Brignoli’s background as a Special Forces Detachment Commander for 10th Special Forces had a primary focus on Special Reconnaissance and Foreign Training in the Trans Sahel Region of Northern Africa. He was also a Special Operations Task Unit Commander for TF 10 in Afghanistan responsible for US/Romanian Special Reconnaissance and Direct Action Missions.

Mr. Brignoli has worked for the DIA as Senior Analyst, deploying to Afghanistan to liaise for the DIA between FBI, DEA, ISAF SOF, and other Intelligence Organizations for target development and prosecution of leading nefarious actors affecting Afghan/Paki/US relations.

As the Joint Special Operations Command Portfolio Manager for Transitioning technologies at the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA), Steve personally led 11 program transitions of $2.6B of taxpayer invested technology to SOCOM. This included coordination, liaison, test and evaluation, and funding support of over 60 programs in four years.

STEVEN B. COLLINS

MASTER CHIEF PETTY OFFICER, US NAVY - NSW ST1

“If I was an active operator today, I certainly would add it to any weapon I could fit it to, for the added protection.”

“In my early days in the Teams we did so many transitions between boats, vehicles, and aircraft, it was constant movement in and out, up and down. It is by the Grace of God that I never had a ND with my long gun. I cannot say how many negligent discharges have occurred to SEALs in the last 30-40 years, but if RTS TriggerShield devices were available back in the day, I would have had one on my CAR-15.”

Mr. Collins is President of Black Ice Security Services, Inc. a small security consulting firm. In addition, he provides part time support to another company as a cleared Senior Consultant/Advisor/Innovator in support of the U.S. Navy Program Executive Office, Enterprise Information Services. As a Team Lead for a small group, he conducts analysis and oversight of government contractor security and cybersecurity practices, procedures and performance.

Mr. Collins enjoyed a highly successful 22-year naval career as a U.S. Navy SEAL and initially as a Naval Helicopter Aircrewman (ASW/SAR). As a widely respected SEAL Operator, he performed intelligence collection, training of foreign national special operations personnel, trained in the use of numerous weapons systems, tactics and conducted multiple operational deployments. Hand selected for a Tier 1, Special Mission Unit, he completed the selection, assessment and core training course serving as the Naval Liaison Officer and Exercise and Training Officer. His final SEAL assignment was as Program Manager and Team Leader at the Office of Naval Intelligence Collections Directorate (ONI-6), where he managed and conducted foreign intelligence collection operations.

Following his retirement from the U.S. Navy as a Master Chief Petty Officer, Mr. Collins began a successful career as an entrepreneur. For the past two decades, Black Ice Security Services has provided investigation and protection services and contracting support for the U.S. Government, private law firms, high net worth and other private clients from his base of operations in the Washington, D.C area.

ERICH MARTIN
MASTER SERGEANT, US ARMY - SFOD-A

“We often operated with indigenous forces. Despite the level of expert training we provided, knowing that the possibility of one of these guys slipping on a rock and fat fisting their trigger was impossible would have absolutely lowered the pucker factor. I recommend the RTS TriggerShield unequivocally.”

Master Sergeant Martin is a highly-decorated and accomplished military professional with over 19 years of experience in special operations, analysis, intelligence, and combat arms. As a soldier he has managed positions in the Special Forces realm including tactical, operational, and strategic planning in combat and permissive environments.

During his career, he served as a Senior Military Instructor for the University of Wyoming ROTC. Master Sergeant Martin was the master trainer for tactics and an advisor for cadets in leadership positions in the battalion. He monitored and developed initiatives in cadet and cadre training, administration, logistics, and marketing.

The majority of his career has been in Army Special Forces. He served as the Operations Sergeant for a Special Forces Operational Detachment-Alpha, Master Sergeant Martin facilitated and managed over 100 mission requirements throughout eleven nations. He conducted missions to intercept cross-border trafficking of weapons, narcotics and personnel.

Additionally, while assigned to a Special Forces Group, he has served as the Special Forces Intelligence Sergeant and SF Engineer Sergeant. Master Sergeant Martin served as the principal analyst and force protection advisor on multiple combat deployments. He has executed over 700 direct action operations in Iraq and Afghanistan to locate high-value targets and individuals. His training efforts of multiple indigenous forces helped set the standard and created various SOP's for targeting of HVI/HVTs.

RYAN CURLEY
NYPD DETECTIVE (RET.)

“The TSM4 should be standard issue for law enforcement officers. The added safety and confidence this device provides; getting in and out of a vehicle, stacking on a door, clearing rooms, etc. is a game changer.”

Detective Curley recently retired as a homicide Detective 3rd Grade with the NYPD. In addition to his advanced weapons and workplace safety and security expertise, Detective Curley served as an instructor in the “Cobra” Unit (Chemical, Ordnance, Biological, and Radiological) and Critical Emergency Responder. Detective Curley was a first responder to “Ground Zero” on September 11, 2001, performing search and recovery operations.

to his law enforcement career, Detective Curley served in the US Marine Corps as a multiple heavy weapons specialist and expert in their deployment and movement with infantry platoons as well as close quarter combat training. He completed the Marine Corps Scout School Course, the FBI and MATOA Advanced Sniper courses.
