The strong sustainability credentials appealed to The Jewelry Edit's founder, Rosena Sammi, an entrepreneur known for championing designers who believe in diversity, creativity, social responsibility, accountability and female empowerment. "What's exciting," she said in a recent Instagram live event, "is that through Joanna, we will be able to visit the mine. Change is notoriously slow in the jewelry industry, but events like these can help get the message out there — we're excited that consumers will be able to learn, too."
