About Me

Hi there, it's Roel from Scenario Cards. Roughly two years ago I had a big burnout and was forced to quit my job. I was unhappy, I didn't know what I wanted from life and I spent a lot of money on life-coaching.

At some point I quit seeing a life coach and started investing my time in researching purpose on my own. A few months into that research I discovered the power of 'what if' scenarios and these really accelerated my recovery.

Exploring these questions with my friends triggered deep conversations which were super insightful. It bugged me to see though, that these powerful scenarios were only accessible through consultation of experienced and expensive professionals.

That's when the idea for Scenario Cards was born. With Scenario Cards you can discover your unique purpose, passion and potential with the people that you care about, before visiting a more experienced professional.

Since our launch at the end of 2020 I have helped over 8000+ happy customers in 69 countries to discover their purpose with Scenario Cards. I would love to work with your company or retail store and help more humans get closer to their calling by asking better questions!

Thank you for your support on this mission,

Giving Back

We realize that making time to get closer to purpose is a privilege. That's why we have partnered with Eden Reforestation Projects. With Eden, we aim to reduce extreme poverty and restore healthy forest by employing local people to plant 1 tree for every pack we sell.

In other words: When you place your bulk order with us, we will plant 1 tree for every pack that's included in our shipment to you.

An illustration featuring eight hands, each holding a small rectangular card. The cards are arranged in a circle around the central text. Each card has a white background with a stylized illustration of a person's head and shoulders, and a large, solid-colored shape (blue, purple, pink, green, yellow, orange) that resembles a splash or a wave. The hands are rendered in a simple, flat style with a light skin tone.
