

Oswald Supply Company FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Centennial Press Release:

Founded in 1923, Oswald Supply is family owned and operated through four generations. Founder, Henry Charles Oswald built the business as a Boiler supply company that soon became the go-to resource for the heating trades in NYC. Keep in mind, at this time, NYC was incinerating garbage, not compacting it as we do now. Incinerators and boilers are both very similar in design, which is why the two product lines were established as Oswald Supply mainstays and are still our top selling items today, 100 years later!

Early on as Oswald Supply acquired legacy boiler company products and patterns, the company began to patent, protect, and manufacture key boiler components that are still in demand today. These products are vital to maintaining older heating systems in municipalities throughout the country. By maintaining control of the manufacturing process, Oswald Supply can help ensure the quality and longevity of these heating products. Housing Authorities and government infrastructure rely on Oswald Supply.

Oswald Supply has always maintained a knowledgeable sales staff, with customer support often led by an Oswald family member. Even employees at Oswald Supply have a long history and depth of knowledge around the Oswald Supply products. Readily available customer support is why Oswald Supply enjoys long-term relationships with its customers. Many of Oswald Supply's customers have been in business for decades if not centuries, as well.

TIMES CHANGE: Over the decades, heating technologies evolved from coal to steam, oil and gas. Oswald Supply can accommodate all heating systems. More recently, as high efficiency boilers dominate the heating industry, Oswald Supply supports these newer heating technologies. Ultimately, heating is an integral part of a climate control system, which opens a whole new market for heating, cooling and ventilation controls, supplies and parts, in addition to our waste management product line (trash chute doors & parts).

Oswald Supply prides itself in customer service, which has always been our trademark. Contractors, manufacturers, engineers, suppliers, and distributors from coast to coast have looked to Oswald Supply for new, old, and custom products, leading the industry nationwide.
