

Textile Designer Amelia Graham works cross-discipline in the fields of fashion, art & interiors

Interest in her geometric and arithmetic work led to the launch of her eponymous line in 2014: free and measured rhythms, nods to brutalist architecture, African textiles and post-modernism, encapsulated in signature prints on fabric, art prints and scarves.

Alongside Amelia Graham London products, Amelia also work on commission for Women and Menswear Clients, interior and commercial designers; recent projects include beauty packaging design, Resort and Swimwear, store window design, and contract furnishings.

A graduate of Chelsea College of Art and Design, she spent a decade designing womenswear print in London before moving to Paris.
Amelia Graham now lives in the UK and is stocked by the Tate Modern shop in London.

