Lastly we make a suggestion of where to go from here.

A LIFE OF THUGGERY

As a nipper sprigling barely five feet tall the young Ogrus Schlager learned the rules of life rough on the cobbled streets of Hungover the capital city of Hunvaria. Life was peaceful enough and though he had little his fists gained the growing Ogre all that he needed. That changed however when the Elves arrived. Though they were barely taller than Ogrus they easily overwhelmed the Army of Hunvaria with its Orcish officers. Soon what was left of the regiments loyal to Kyng Gorge in far off Londinium were boarding ships to escape the Tyrant Mordred.

A procession of women and children trudged after the retreating soldiers as they headed for the coast. Schlager could not find his own parents and him hovel of a home was alight when he made it back their in the panicked city. Always a lad of bright and sometimes suspect motives he spied an escape from the Elves in a passing cart. Three children sat on the tail gate of the cart, a boy and two girls. Ogrus..by means nefarious managed to lore the boy from the cart and get his clothes. Looking fairly like his now unconscious victim and with threats to the two remaining children Schalger rode to the port in comfort. Whither the rather shocked family came to terms with the cuckoo in their nest is not known but having sailed to Albion life changed.

Once he was able Orgus Schalger entered as a recruit for the Krautian Giant Legion where he made Private and was sent to Catalucia as part of the ill fated Kooruna campaign. During the retreat Schlager drowned his sergeant in a puddle of mud gaining promotion on the spot and an encounter with an enemy detachment gained him a Hunvarian made Kannonderbuss which has not left his side since. In the last stages of the Battle of Kooruna the now Sergeant used a crudely fashioned wooden club to knock his commanding officer down where he was bayoneted by blue coated Elves. On the voyage back to Porcsmuff sergeant Schlager was made Captain.

Now in Catalucia the life of thuggery for Schlager continues and those under him are often scared of his methods of personal advancement. He has mused upon deserting and trying to find the legendary Obidiah Hogswill....

Rules for Flintloque: When playing Flintloque treat this character as follows. An Ogre Veteran / Regular / Elite armed with a Wooden Club and a Kannonderbuss. He may command any Greate Britorcn section or any Deserter section. His dislike of following orders makes his troops nervous and as a result when play begins place FIVE Shaken Tokens on friendly characters of your choice. However you may ignore the first FIVE Shaken Tokens inflicted upon the section by enemy action. He has a cost of 99 Points.

Rules for Slaughterloo: In Slaughterloo treat this character as follows. The captain is a unique character officer. He may serve in a KLG Ogre Line or Light unit or any Deserter infantry unit. He dislikes official orders and as a result once per game his unit may have TWO Free Actions when activated instead of one. He has a cost of 60 Points.

Uniform Details: Dressed in the uniform of the KGL the Captain sports white breeches and shirt with a red tunic covered with a grey greatcoat. Boots and Shako are black.

Where To Go From Here: If you wish to make use of this character in your games and you have it in your collection then you will get best use from it with these titles. Use 5030 Slaughterloo 2nd Edition in the KGL pages of the book and also 5028 Flintloque 3rd Edition Bier & Bones game book under Ogres. Miniatures which go well with this character in scenarios are those in the Krautian Giant Legion (56120, 56107, 56080 and 56109) and deserters such as 5006 Obidiah's Army.
