LIFE STORY BOOKS

TYAW3720 | 224pp | £8

After being forced to leave the Army through injury, Josh Fortune's life is in a mess. Blaming God for his sufferings, he begins to fall away from his faith. Out of the blue Josh is offered a job working as a cameraman in Afghanistan. Seizing the chance to get real excitement and adventure. Josh takes the job and is thrust into three years at war. He experiences fear, friendship, combat, and love. Above all. God uses the literal desert experience to bring Josh back to him in this gripping tale of a Christian at war.

Under the title Surprise Package, Heidi's early story was told by her parents and published in 2003. Starting with that account by Steve and Liz, I'm just Heidi continues with Heidi's own story and that of 'Heidi and James'. Their story beautifully demonstrates lives worth living with Down's syndrome.

Heidi lives her life to the full, and her love for Jesus shines through.

Often heart-breaking, always honest, frequently amusing—and above all exceptionally challenging.

MTS6714 | 169pp | £8

An honest and robust account of what it takes to be a cross-cultural missionary in the most degraded yet colourful area of a great city—the city is London and the culture is Soho. It is the story of urban church planting in all its raw and realistic challenges at a time when establishing new churches was in its infancy. For the Toogood family the challenge of living alongside drug, alcohol and sex abuse with its ugly squalor of poverty is overcome by a passion to seize any and every opportunity for the gospel.

PBF7377 | 196pp | £8

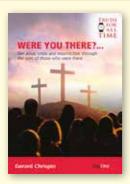

Eunice Nevey recounts her early life as a motherless little girl, growing up amid hardship and poorly educated, and how in time she became a fully trained State Registered Nurse and State Certified Midwife with a diploma in Tropical Nursing, continuing with missionary training and language learning, to become a missionary nurse in Zaire.

This is her story of God's care of her as she put her trust in him to guide and help her through each day she was there.

With line drawings by Karen Coulthard.

It has been a lifelong desire of mine to become a runner. This book includes my personal story of seeking to fulfil that desire in my sixties, with a long history of Chronic Fatigue Syndrome. While endeavouring to realize this ambition, my thoughts have frequently turned to the far more important desire in my life: to run the race that God has set before me and to 'finish my course with joy' (Acts 20:24). The Bible often likens the Christian life to running a race, and considering these Scriptural truths has been a real spur and help to me as I persevere in my spiritual race. Each chapter of the book deals with a different aspect of learning to run and looks at the Biblical parallels about running the Christian race that have consequently become more real to me; I trust that these lessons will be of help to you also.

WYT6820 | 208pp | £9

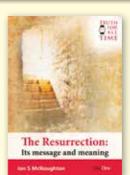

What are the two most significant events in history? The Christian will say, 'The death of Jesus on the cross and His resurrection from the dead.' Gerard Chrispin's book is like a witnesses' waiting room at a trial.

Those appearing are eyewitnesses of either the horror of what happened on and around the cross, or of the staggering encounters with the risen Lord Jesus Christ three days later!

TPDG3140 | 144pp | £5

Martin Luther once said that Isaiah 53 'ought to be written on parchment of gold and lettered in diamonds.' Isaiah 53 is truly one of the most remarkable chapters in the whole Bible. Although written some 700 years BC, it actually contains one of the clearest views of the Person and Work of Christ in all of the Scriptures. This ancient Old Testament prophecy gives us a distilled New Testament theology.

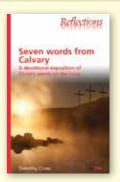

RMM6837 | 208pp | £9

There is hardly a more important topic for the Christian to consider than the resurrection. It is the one thing that makes our faith unique.

There is no greater victory than victory over death and Ian McNaughton's book examines its reality, impact and importance from a variety of angles. Written with the pastoral insight for which McNaughton is known for, The Resurrection provides some vital insights on the most vital of subjects.

If the last words of anyone have special significance and importance, how much more so the words spoken by the Lord Jesus Christ—he who is the very Son of God himself—as he was dying on the cross. It was said of Jesus that 'No man ever spoke like this man!' (John 7:46).

This book explains, explores and applies the seven last sayings that Jesus uttered as he suffered and died to procure the redemption of his people.

In these thirty-four meditations, John Jacobs, a Jew who came to faith in Jesus, draws on his Jewish background to explore the roots of communion, and includes prayers and hymns to help us in our worship.

SKU: GEN | 240pp | £8 Professor McIntosh is a scientist who sees no contradiction between science and the events of creation in the book of Genesis. He believes that all Christian doctrine, directly or indirectly. has its basis in the literal events of the first eleven chapters of the Bible, and that these 'foundations' of the faith have been undermined in the church by the fallible theories of evolution.

This easy to understand book argues from the complete accuracy of Genesis and the Bible. It provides key support in the creation/evolution debate. True revival of Christianity in the decadent West today will never be known unless we get back to believing God's Word from the very beginning.

The Design argument contends that design in nature reveals a Designer. This book presents this in the light of the latest discoveries about the complexity and beauty of the natural world.

About the Author:

'Professor Stuart Burgess writes in plain, easy-tounderstand terms of the complexity and beauty of living creatures all around us.'

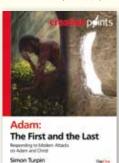

From the Preface by Professor Andy McIntosh, University of Leeds

DOM3928 | 192pp | £8

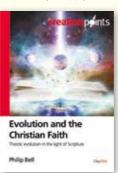

Have humans descended from apes, or was man specially created? Do humans have unique characteristics and abilities that set them apart from all the animals? The answers to these crucial questions determine whether man is just an animal or a special spiritual being. This book shows that there is overwhelming evidence that man has a Creator.

ADAM6080 | 140pp | £7

If there was no Adam, the whole biblical message of creation, fall and redemption falls apart. This book defends Adam's historicity and shows why he is so vital in Scripture. It also shows why, if you attack the 'first Adam'. you ultimately attack the life, teaching and person of the 'Last Adam', our Lord Jesus Christ.

ECF6073 | 320pp | £10

Does theistic evolution enhance our understanding of origins and Christian doctrine? Or does it hinder it as some maintain? This book sets out to explore these questions in detail. It assesses the impact of evolutionary thinking in society at large and whether or not theistic evolution is compatible with core Christian doctrines.

Six addresses by Emyr Roberts delivered in the 1970s and 80s at the Bala Ministers' Conference. They offer a fascinating and heart warming account of God's workings among the Welsh Calvinistic Methodists in the 18th and early 19th Centuries. The examples of William Williams, Pantycelyn, and the Methodist societies remind us that biblical Christianity is not just to be understood but experienced, and that in community with others.

HELP40

The Christian is not promised an easy ride through life. This booklet examines ways in which we can understand trials, endure them, and even, 'rejoice in them'! With the trial comes the promise of John 16:33.

HELP41

Crises usually come when we least expect, and we can easily feel overwhelmed by them. The good news is that God is in control and he will get us through such times and use them to deepen our relationship with him. This booklet sets out biblical principles that will equip us to navigate these crises and benefit from them to grow in our faith.

WHAT THE BIBLE REALLY SAYS ABOUT...

HELP42

Making a will enables us to steward the resources that God has gifted to us, and so to make provision for the people and purposes that we are committed to.

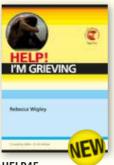

HELP44

Sleep is essential for our well-being, but for some it can offer a daunting prospect. This booklet gives practical advice alongside biblical teaching.

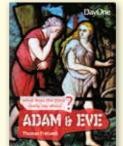

HELP43

Biblical wisdom based on the words of Jesus that aim to be both helpful and encouraging for anyone who has said, or feels like saying, 'Help! I'm a tired parent.'

HELP45

Grief is not something you 'get over' but rather something you have to learn to live with. The writer is movingly honest and gives sensitive, biblical guidance.

WBSAE6318

Were Adam and Eve real historical people? This is becoming an increasingly controversial question within the church. This booklet explores the biblical teaching about Adam and Eve. It will demonstrate why it is essential to understand that the Bible clearly teaches they were real historical people. By using data from both the Old and New Testaments it seeks to provide a clear understanding of what the Bible teaches on this foundational issue.

WBSM4574

Is marriage a good thing? Is there anything wrong with being single? With so many marriages ending in divorce with all its sad consequences wouldn't it be better not to marry? This book tries to explain the Bible's teaching about marriage. Our society seems to be confused about what marriage is and whether marriage is necessary. This book takes us to the unchanging message of the word of God, helping us to see that marriage is a glorious gift of God to his created world.

NEW BOOKS

MRRR7452 | 224pp | £9

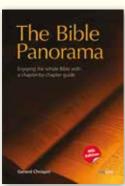

The previous book, Rogues in Royal Robes, covered in detail the rise and fall of King Omri of the Northern Kingdom of Israel and his dynasty—this included his son, King Ahab and his descendants. It also detailed the rise of Jehu from being a commander in Israel's army to his being the king of the Northern Kingdom of Israel and the destruction of King Ahab's descendants. Furthermore, the life of the evil Queen Athaliah of the Southern Kingdom of Judah was covered in detail. This current book looks at the enthralling history of Saul and his failings, including his rejection as the king of Israel. The lives of David and his sons and the establishment of his descendants on the throne of the Southern Kingdom of Judah are also examined in the light of the growth of the Assyrian and Babylonian Empires. In addition an explanation is given of the fascinating origin and relationship between the two Kingdoms of Israel, the origin of the Jews and the Samaritans.

The Bible Panorama is a signpost to every book of the Bible and to the verses in every chapter of every book. Its aim is to help the reader—whether experienced or new-to enjoy and understand his or her journey through God's Word.

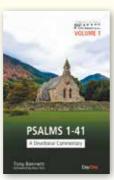

In Part One each chapter of each book of the Bible is plainly summarised and explained.

Part Two comprises practical topics about the Bible to help you trust it and read it with unhindered confidence.

TPV17186 | 270pp | £9

Many of us will read Psalms and find great encouragement. And there's nothing wrong with that. But do we really understand them? And do we read only our favourite psalms? Reading through Psalms consecutively allows us to pick up the recurring themes of the psalmists, to learn much about the character and attributes of our great and glorious God, and to experience the different kind of psalms - worship psalms, penitential psalms, psalms of lament and psalms of praise.

TPV27421 | 204pp | £7

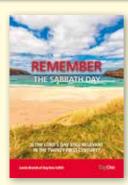

Book Two opens with a collection of psalms written by the Sons of Korah (42-49), followed by a group of psalms of David set against specific events in David's life (51-60), the historical details of which are found in 1 and 2 Samuel. The format and aim of the book remain the same as in Volume One to show each psalm's historical setting, explain its meaning, apply its teaching to our daily lives, and see how the psalmist points us to Christ, all in just six pages.

HOAM7209 | 96pp | £6

This book seeks to build upon the 'how-to' guide developed by Edwin Baker and Alan Greenbank in the 1980s, drawing from much experience gained in the intervening years. Although primarily designed to help those engaged in open-air outreach, there are numerous helpful hints and tips which will assist any believer in sharing their faith with others. The aim of this publication is to make a positive impact in nurturing and encouraging a Godhonouring evangelism.

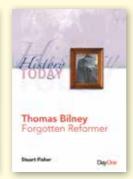

RSD7193 | 105pp | £6

Is 'The Lord's Day' still relevant in the twenty-first century?

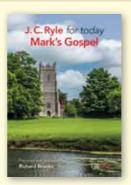

The Fourth Commandment to 'keep the Sabbath Day' is not an 'optional extra' for enthusiasts—it was there between the Third Commandment and the Fifth Commandment from the moment God engraved them on tablets of stone. It is vitally important for Christians to grasp that the Law of God is for all nations and all times.

This is a very helpful book showing the necessity of Sabbath observance in the New Testament era.

HTTB7384 | 112pp | £7

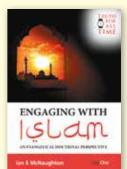

Thomas Bilney entered Trinity Hall Cambridge in 1510. Shy and retiring, he simply wanted to serve God. On the eve of the Reformation in England, Bilney played his part, when God spoke to him through the reading of Erasmus's New Testament. Transformed, he courageously evangelized Cambridge, gathering a group around him, including the mighty Latimer. Constantly watched and harassed, he was eventually caught and forced to recant. Later restored, he blazed a trail preaching Christ that led him finally to the stake.

JCRMARK7230

The whole Bible is full of the Lord Jesus Christ, but it is in the Gospels that we meet him most intimately. John Charles Ryle (1816-1900) wrote his Expository Thoughts on the Gospels, covering all four of them, and these have become famous and treasured. In his preface to the volume on Mark, Ryle expressed his desire (in this and in all his writings) 'to lead my readers to Christ and faith in him, to repentance and holiness, to the Bible and to prayer'. This abridged edition is sent forth with that same desire.

The rise of Islam in the West is the next and greatest challenge the contemporary Western church has to face. It is a challenge especially to pastors and other church leaders as it is their responsibility to prepare their congregations especially the young among them—to know what Muslims believe and be ready for the difficult days ahead for Christianity in the West. In this book the author seeks throughout to speak the truth in love about God's way of salvation as revealed in the Scriptures.

BTLS7414 | 240pp | £9

Throughout the spring and into the summer of 2021 Christians from the UK and beyond were tuning in to a series of online interviews each Sunday evening called Before They Leave The Stage, transmitted through the YouTube Channel of the Heath Evangelical Church, Cardiff. The interviews featured seventeen retired pastors and one evangelist.

Convinced that God was in this series, it was the desire of the interviewers that these testimonies be heard far and wide. The result is this book which it is hoped will extend the reach of their stories for God's glory.

Each interview covers background history, conversion, call to service, blessings and difficulties in the work, advice, and reflections on the need of the hour.

'If you are searching for help in appreciating the amazing message of Hosea then look no further. Alun Ebenezer has made a fine job of getting to grips with the contents of the prophecy and he applies it well to our present situations with apt illustrations. There are challenges for the church, the Christian and the unbeliever. I enthusiastically commend this book to you.' — Philip H Eveson, Former Principal and Old Testament tutor at the London Seminary

OUMATT7438 | 224pp | £9

The Gospel of Matthew forms the perfect bridge between the Old and New Testaments, showing how Jesus is the fulfilment of the prophecies and commandments given to Israel. The writer takes pains to record Jesus' words and actions that indicate this gospel is for all mankind. As we examine Matthew, we see the unity of Scripture, not just in the fulfilment of the past, but as a springboard for the present and future mission of the church to 'make disciples of all nations,' with the promise of the abiding presence of Jesus.

OUPHIL7339 | 80pp | £6

Having repented of his sins and trusted himself to Jesus as Lord, the runaway slave Onesimus had been forgiven by God. How then should Philemon welcome him back? —treat his slave severely, as a non-person who had cheated him, or welcome him back as a Christian brother? And how should you and I treat those who sin against us but come back asking for forgiveness? This letter is for Christians down the years because its message is never out of date.

EXNEH7285 | 192pp | £8

Can one man with the help of God turn a vision into reality? Nehemiah did. The walls of Jerusalem arose from rubble. A wayward people were brought together as a worshipping community. The book of Nehemiah challenges and encourages us all to face the issues and problems confronting our churches today. It offers us timeless principles and insights to be followed, if we are to see many of our churches rise from potential ruin to God-inspired restoration.

EX1&2PETER7360

288pp | £7

This book is for the busy pastor and for anyone who wants to gain a deeper understanding of Peter's first and second letters. Through Peter, God provides some clear and helpful answers to the age-old question of suffering, urging his people to look out and look up as we navigate both personal and corporate pain. As you read and study, may you find certainty and hope amid suffering. For the glory of God.

EXREV7848 | 184pp | £8

The book of Revelation may well be the most neglected and misunderstood book in the New Testament, Yet Gary Benfold argues instead that Revelation is one of the easiest books in the New Testament to understand if we will content ourselves with standing back and looking for the main message. That is what he helps us to do in this book in a thrilling and fast-moving look at the most famous visions ever recorded.

BOOKS ON THE FAMILY

NL2 | 186pp | £9

No Longer Two is a guide for couples preparing for marriage. Designed in a contemporary and accessible style, it faces the issues that will confront two people committing the whole of their lives together. With preparation questions and a brief but relevant Bible Study for each chapter, it is especially designed for those who take seriously God's revealed plan for marriage. No Longer Two has become a standard handbook used by church leaders in many countries (a Spanish translation is also available) for the vital ministry of preparing a man and a woman for the most exciting and challenging adventure of their lives.

There is one purpose in life: 'to glorify God, and to enjoy him for ever'. This book aims to encourage us to please God by submitting our wills to his in our romantic relationships. Neil Richardson explains that the teaching of the Bible is that Christians should not go out with non-Christians, and he thoroughly explores the various issues involved. He looks at points such as:

- why it is wrong to go out with a non-Christian;
- some of our motives for wanting these relationships;
- what the eternal consequences are if we disobey the Bible's teaching;
- our objections to obeying this teaching.

In addition, he offers some helpful advice to parents of children who might be involved in relationships with unbelievers.

GP0958 | 160pp | £7

The family is under threat. Contemporary culture and changes in legislation are seeking to redefine its structure, parents are increasingly giving over to the state the responsibility of disciplining their children, and homes are constantly bombarded by immoral images of the 'family' through TV. The great need today is to return to biblical principles for family life. The Bible is God's manual for the people he created in his image, and therefore it has much to say on this crucial issue. Here, Andy Oliver guides us helpfully through the biblical teaching on marriage and family life, and emphasises the need to follow God's Word if we are to build solid foundations for a healthy family.

What is the key to a long and successful marriage? Why do some marriages go the distance, while others fall apart? In particular, what can men do to keep their marriages going? In this short but practical guide, John Benton uses the Bible as a framework to provide some answers. Here are four essentials that will make a marriage that is satisfying, enjoyable and worthwhile, and therefore likely to last.

HM4802 | 32pp | £3

According to 2012 data from the Office for National Statistics, 42 per cent of marriages in England and Wales end in divorce. The sentiments and promises sincerely expressed on a wedding day do not guarantee a lasting marriage— and nor does a Christian faith. You have to do more than just want a lasting marriage, and certainly more than merely expect it. So what can a wife do to strengthen her marriage? Here Ann Benton provides wise and practical counsel for women who want to ensure their marriages go the distance.

CHILDREN AND YOUTH

YM7322 | 172pp | £7

The Year of the Mask is a story for girls aged 8–13. It describes the lives of two friends when their boarding school is closed, during the COVID-19 pandemic of 2020–21, before a vaccine was developed. Song-Wei is unable to return to her home in China and goes to stay with her friend Annelise in Somerset. It follows their time in 'lockdown', sharing their worries for their families, who are working on the frontline in England, China and The Congo. Song-Wei's parents are missionaries in the Congo and her grandparents are working in a COVID-19 hospital in China. Annelise's father and brother are both working on the front line in hospitals in England with COVID-19 patients. Through the challenges and difficulties they face, they grow to know Jesus' help and comfort and find a deep faith in God as they help the people in the village where they are living.

Seventeenth Century England was an unsettled place but men like Bunyan sought to bring the healing word of God to it. With this unique quide, you have the opportunity of learning about John Bunyan's life, and of visiting the places where he lived; you can see the sites of the tiny hamlet where Bunyan was born, the church where he preached, and the prison where most of his writing took place.

William Carey left school at the age of twelve, yet was responsible for overseeing the translation of all or parts of the Bible into forty languages, and the preparation of six grammars and three dictionaries. He attended no university, yet became Principal of the finest college in India in his day a college still renowned for its excellence nearly two hundred years later. He was sent to India by no government agency, yet became the official translator for the British Raj and head of the Department of Languages in the government training centre. His was a life of > determined vision, personal tragedy and outstanding achievement; he became the father of modern missions and his work is still enjoyed by millions across India this was the legacy of the Northamptonshire cobbler.

During his thirty-six years as a country clergyman in Suffolk, J. C. Ryle wrote about 200 tracts, historical biographies and biblical commentaries. By these publications his name became wellknown outside his rural parishes and at the same time he was an established preacher and popular speaker at national meetings and conferences. In 1880 he became the first Anglican Bishop of Liverpool and served in that capacity for the next twenty years. Today much that 'Bishop Ryle' wrote is still published and many of his tracts and publications are available on the numerous 'Ryle' Internet sites. Like each of the books in this unique series, Travel with Bishop J. C. Ryle is both carefully researched and a valuable travel guide. With over 150 colour photographs and drawings, it will guide the traveller to many of the key locations associated with an evangelist whose parish was literally the world.

Oxford is home to one of the world's oldest and great universities, the training ground of kings, prime ministers and archbishops. Popular Christian movements have been born here, resulting in radical reform and far-reaching revival. Prominent Christian leaders have been nurtured here, while others have been banished or killed in the streets. In this lively account we meet a courageous princess, an outspoken reformer, three martyred bishops, a puritan vice-chancellor, some zealous undergraduates, an atheist academic turned Christian apologist, and many more.

Before the mid 19th century, Cambridge was in no way reputed for its science, despite the fact that it spawned Isaac Newton, Charles Darwin and others. For centuries Theology, the Queen of the Sciences, held sway. It was the major subject studied and all Fellows were obliged to enter holy orders until recent times. Little surprise, therefore, that Cambridge became the cradle of the English Reformation. With influences from the nearby continent (including Erasmus and Luther) developed their ideas for which they were prepared to die as martyrs. The mutually inclusive, as against exclusive, relationship between Religion and Science is a major story in Cambridge, which this guide aims to tell.

Cambridge this is where so many of our leading Reformers

Some may have heard of the ABC of becoming a Christian. This booklet extends this to include the Christian life and the certain hope of heaven. Written for ordinary people who appreciate simple things plainly put, it affirms that the great sacrifice of Calvary is sufficient for all mankind, though we only derive benefit from it when we put our trust in the Lord Jesus Christ. We need to repent and should do so, but the wonderful thing is that, when sinners genuinely trust in the Saviour, they do repent.

You've been invited to a baptism ... but what's it all about? In this helpful little booklet. Rich Baxter uses one guestion and two pictures to help you get right to the heart of what your friend's baptism is all about, and how it all relates to Jesus and his gospel. It covers:

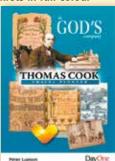

- So you've been invited to a baptism.
- The first picture dying and rising again.
- The second picture being washed.
- What next? The road ahead.

Today William Hartley would be applauded for establishing a brand that made him immensely wealthy, yet his aim was not material success but to 'serve the Lord every day to the best of my ability'. His business practice reflected his faith, earning him an outstanding reputation for integrity, quality, and care for his customers and employees. A man of great compassion, he used his immense wealth to enrich the lives of others.

Paul Watts spent 35 years as a pastor in Coventry, leading what was a Gospel Standard church, steeped in hyper-Calvinism, on a fascinating journey of reformation and gospel-driven change at the heart of a multi-ethnic city. The book tells this fascinating story, as well as giving biblical and theological analysis of the principles that should guide this change.

First published during a resurgence of interest in Reformed theology, Children of Abraham made a major contribution to the re-thinking of the doctrine of the church and baptism around the world. Now revised and updated for the twenty-first century, David Kingdon's classic defence of believer's baptism deals cogently with this vital issue through careful exposition of Scripture and seeks to work out a positive view of children and the family in God's redemptive purpose.

GPPC | 288pp | £9

Recently there has been a growing concern for the health of gospel churches. But very often that concern comes down to the introduction of a few new items to the church agenda – a Christian foundations course here or a discipleship course there.

The agenda of this book is different. Its vision is that the whole way a church should be formed, run and led should work for the health of all its members and the thriving of the church as a community of God's people. It is a church with an intentional mindset throughout. It is a church where all the dots are joined up.

The church of Christ will be completely pure only in the new creation. But local churches are to be a colony of that Pure Church now. This book is a call to work towards that purity.

And now the much anticipated 5th volume in Needham's series, The Story of Church in the Eighteenth Century:

GP2000BK5 | £21.99 | DUE OUT END OF MARCH

Thoroughly researched with beautifully linked arguments, biographies, context and discussions, Needham provides a riveting text: balancing fact and understanding in the wisdom of experience. The book offers a wealth of knowledge for pastors, missionaries, students and professors as they pursue their own education into the response of Christians during the 18th century towards these shifts in the tides of the affairs of men.
