ART GLASS DESIGN LLC

Glass artist Julie Conway creates award-winning functional & sculptural illuminated glassworks. Working with molten glass since 1997, the material opened up a path of inspiration, landing many studio assistant positions with European and American glass Masters. She has dedicated her studio practice to refining traditional techniques with a contemporary design aesthetic.

Projects range from large hospitality installations at international hotels and restaurants, commercial development projects, and custom home collections, to museum shows and award-winning architectural tours.

Julie operates a vibrant studio in Seattle, WA, where she conducts talented teams of glassmakers, fabricators, contractors and electricians to execute her custom illuminated glass commissions. With 20+ years of glassmaking experience melded with design and craft, each blown glass fixture becomes a functional artwork, and often the focal point of architectural spaces. Now embarking on her new ready-made series, LUMi COLLECTION, the decor & lighting product line is ever expanding. Julie's signature specialty is collaborating with architects, designers, clients to create extraordinary illuminated glassworks.

ART GLASS DESIGN

Green energy is not a fad for me, but a lifestyle. I have lived "off-the-grid," driven my car with a hydrogen generator, participated in the United Nations' World Environment Day, and currently, I live in a Green-Built Certified home in Seattle, WA.

LUMi Collection utilizes recycled glass, a zero-carbon footprint furnace fueled by vegetable oil, low-energy LED solutions, & reclaimed metal components. Product created with environmental appreciation and reclaimed materials can elevate it to tell a story, and can leave a legacy. .

Julie is a founding member of BioGlass.org, (2006) originally a 501(c)3 non-profit, now a group dedicated to the education and development of eco-efficient glassmaking solutions.

As a contemporary designer, I believe we need rapid and creative responses to the current human & environmental challenges by introducing innovative ideas that apply to our interconnected world.
