Battle Over the Ballot: East Aurora's Journey through Women's Suffrage

Robert Lowell Goller, Town of Aurora Historian

In commemoration of the upcoming 100th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment, Aurora Town Historian Rob Goller will explore the women's suffrage efforts in the Town of Aurora and Village of East Aurora in the decades leading up to November 1917, when women were granted the right to vote in New York State. This presentation will go beyond the important role the Roycroft played in the movement and explore lesser-known local suffrage workers; the challenge to convince East Aurorans—both male and female—that women were qualified to vote; and the local efforts after 1917 to encourage women to cast their ballots and run for office.

Postcards: A Pictorial History of East Aurora and More

Grace Meibohm, Meibohm Fine Arts Inc. of East Aurora

"I have been collecting postcards for more than 30 years. With my love for local history, my postcard collection has grown in series including: the Roycroft Campus, East Aurora and surrounding Southtown hamlets, artist Margaret Evans Price and certain areas of Buffalo. The stories that postcards tell through the varied commercial publishers, real photo images, and the personal text written on the cards, to me brings our local history to life."
