Christopher Ræburn presents the bold new chapter in his evolving exploration of military heritage, fabric technology and garment reappropriation in his Autumn/Winter 2011 men's and womenswear collections.

“So much of BLAST has been inspired by our research into the original garments, their fabric technology and development”, Ræburn says. “Each piece pays tribute to the objective of the original item — whether protection, camouflage, speed or warmth — and injects a new life and striking functionality through our complete redesign.”

Dividing the collection into ‘Remade’, ‘Lightweight’ and ‘British’, this confident, intelligent and completely unique range will be showcased as part of NEWGEN men's and womenswear during London Fashion Week, 18–23 February.

REMADE — the heart of the Christopher Ræburn brand, ‘Remade’ showcases Ræburn's technical attributes for reconstructing vintage military fabrics and garments sourced throughout Europe. Strictly limited to 50 pieces worldwide, and with an emphasis on quality and luxury detailing, highlights include the new three-quarter length fake fur lined Inuit Jacket in heavy Swedish wool from the 1940s and the

Inuit Coat

Pop-Out Jacket which utilises a deconstructed Swiss military mac outer and a German parka inner featuring original zigzag quilting.

The new Duffel Coat constructed from grey Danish military trousers and featuring leather inserts from German naval jackets, and the Reversible Jacket with rubberised German poncho outer concealing a beautifully dappled, technicolour inner made from military transit blankets, also deserve credit.

LIGHTWEIGHT — Bold, playful and undeniably ‘blastful’, the Lightweight category encompasses Ræburn’s best selling parachute range. Including a Parka, Zipped Poncho, Reversible Hoodie, and Windcheater in new winter colours and prints — innovative product detailing consists of sporty mesh hoods, contrasting grosgrain taping and concealed bags for easy packing. Lightweight also launches the ‘Blast’ print, scattered across both the men’s and womenswear hoodies, from which the Autumn/Winter collection derives its name.

BRITISH — An exciting new addition to the Christopher Ræburn collection, ‘British’ will see Ræburn working exclusively with the dead stock from a new British-made fabric with every season. Launching with West Yorkshire’s Hainsworth Melton wool, Christopher Ræburn

Parachute Wincheater

'British' reflects the brand's holistic approach and confirms Ræburn's dedication to British provenance and production.

Launching with a checked Parallel Parka in a striking tartan regimental wool, a Guardsman's Pilot Jacket in the iconic military red, and a Parallel Jacket in navy with taupe grosgrain taping — each garment will also be replicated in grey and black Melton wool. The women's 'British' range sees the addition of an Ice Skating coat in the Guardsman's Red and a Cape in Sage Green, completing the collection with a military flourish.

Christopher Ræburn is the winner of the prestigious NEWGEN award for both men's and womenswear in a single season.
