9 TIPS FOR THE SOLITARY WICCAN

Being a solitary Wiccan practitioner poses challenges other than just not having guidance in your journey. If you really prefer this path, here are some tips for a smoother experience:

1.

HAVE CLEAR INTENTIONS.

You should be able to answer clearly and assuredly why you choose this path. Just as joining a coven, choosing to be a solitary Wiccan takes commitment and lots of hard work. It is not a hobby or a pastime. Can you explain in 30 seconds why you choose to practice solitary?

2.

DO NOT LIMIT YOUR LEARNING.

Do not limit your learning surface knowledge of Wicca. Don't read books from just one author. Cast a wider net and dig deeper. Being alone in this path means you rely solely on you for your choice in reading materials, so be careful not to limit yourself.

3.

ESTABLISH THE BASIC FRAMEWORK OF YOUR BELIEFS.

After all the reading you do, you will find some things ring truer to you than others. Adapt those and even write them down in your Book of Shadows.

4.

CREATE YOUR OWN RITUALS.

In your learning and practicing, you will reach a point where you can splinter off from what's "by the book". This is normal and it is normal course as a solitary practitioner.

5.

ESTABLISH AN EXPERIENCE-BASED DEGREE SYSTEM.

Just as in being a part of a coven, it is possible to set standards for yourself and allow yourself to move forward in experience-based degrees. You yourself can evaluate if you think you've advanced and are on a higher level of learning.

6.

SOCIALIZE WITH LIKE-MINDED PEOPLE.

Being a solitary practitioner does not mean becoming a hermit and not socializing with other people. Your solitary practice is your foundation for your every day activities, where you de-stress and recharge.

7.

WELCOME TRANSFORMATION.

You will reach a point where your rituals and your learning balance each other out. Your practice becomes a holistic and you will find yourself on the path to healing. Embrace it.

8.

YOUR PROGRESS WILL BE CHALLENGED.

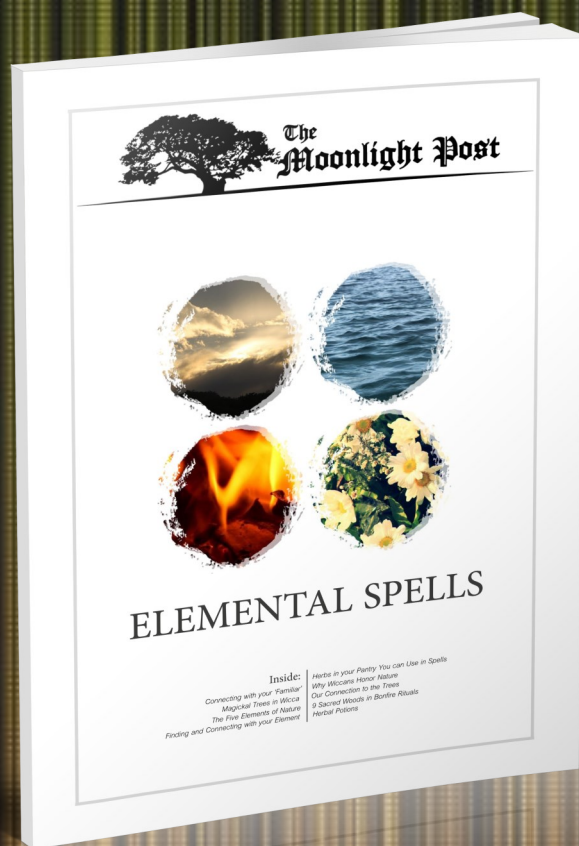

You will find your progress challenged, not by you, but by everything around you. This is how you will gauge your advancement. Life is in motion. So remain strong and firm in your beliefs.

9.

KNOW THAT YOU ARE NOT ALONE.

There will be some moments where you crave connecting with other like-minded people (See number 6). Know that you are not alone, there are Wiccan communities online and all you have to do is search.

The fruits of your labor as a solitary practitioner will give you fulfillment like no other, knowing that you treaded this path alone and you are able to carve out a space that's just yours. There is just invaluable wisdom to be gained at being a solitary practitioner. So congratulations for choosing to go down this path.
