Accell's New USB-C to USB-A Adapter Rapidly Charges USB-C Devices

If you have a device with the still fairly new USB-C port, you probably already know that there aren't an abundance of adapters and such out there right now.

However, Accell recently launched a USB-C to USB-A adapter that features rapid charging and the ability to connect a USB-A supported accessory. This can be anything from a USB flash drive to a computer mouse (anything that can be plugged into a USB-A port).

That means that you can connect a mouse and use it on your USB-C device or view and transfer files from a flash drive and other things of that nature.

Accell's USB-C to USB-A 3.0 Adapter with USB-C Rapid Charging Port converts a device's USB-C port into a USB-A port, and is equipped with a USB-C charging receptacle. This adapter is plug-and-play ready (Windows XP and above, Mac OS 10.6 and above, and Chrome OS), requiring no additional software or driver.

Accell's USB-C to USB-A 3.0 Adapter features and specifications include the following:

- * Reversible USB-C connector
- * USB 3.0 compliant with data transfer speeds up to 120Mbps

- * USB powered design and requires no external power
- * Power consumption: 5V @ 120mA
- * Approximate length: 6.9 in. (175mm)

I've been trying to find an affordable mobile device (smartphone or tablet) with a USB-C port since I really want to get into this new technology. I'm leaning towards a certain tablet by only time will tell if I'll ever be able to afford it before it's already old/outdated! 😞 It's too bad this adapter doesn't seem to support Linux/Unix (my personal OS). Maybe soon?

If you already have a device and want to connect devices that support USB-A to it, this is a great option (well, at least until it's back in stock - it's THAT popular).
