Accell begins rollout of USB-C products, with their entire USB-C product line to be on display at CES 2016

Fremont, Calif. – Oct. 14, 2015 – Accell, a provider of premium power products, computer and mobile device accessories, today announced the latest addition to the company's ever-expanding product lines with its new USB-C adapters, cables and hubs. With an MSRP starting at $17.99, Accell USB-C products are becoming available now.

Now shipping, Accell's USB-C to Gigabit Ethernet Adapter easily converts a computer's USB-C port into Gigabit Ethernet port. Adding a Gigabit Ethernet connection to a computer eliminates the slower connection speeds and reduces the security risks that are often present when using a wireless network. In addition, the USB-C to HDMI 1.4 Adapter converts a USB-C port into an HDMI output while the USB-C to VGA Adapter quickly converts a computer's USB Type-C port into a VGA output.

Accell's USB-C cables and adapters feature the following:

Smaller without sacrificing performance – Roughly a third of the size of a USB-A
