EXPLORE HI-LO CHAPTER BOOKS SET 1

This series was developed by Australian authors for Australian readers. eXplore Chapter Books Set 1 covers Reading Recovery levels 19-28 (approximately 6-7 years old), but the content is suitable for adolescents and adults. The sight words are introduced to be reviewed before reading. And after reading, there are extension exercises to improve reading and writing skills. You are all experiencing students with self-esteem and anxiety concerns in regard to success with reading. We are addressing this “epidemic” of perception of student failure with reading which can be addressed with the right content and directed help from the teacher.

The content is curriculum-based whether this be related to Australian history – for example, the Gold Rushes or Leichhardt – Indigenous perspectives, stories related to our Asian neighbours, and Sustainability. These books were designed to provide short sentences, using informal vernacular without slang or crude-talk, to assist fluency of reading across numerous pages. It is designed specifically for the student who is not practising their reading and is in serious danger of regression in competence. Reading frequency is well-researched as an obvious factor in improving fluency. These books may be “easy” or below some students’ level of competency, but practising is essential for fluency.

The Teacher Guides are comprehensive. They contain Before Reading exercises which address familiarity with the sight words, and After Reading exercises which extending into reading, writing, and comprehension. It is aimed at building word vocabulary, sight words, and writing practice exercises. It is unashamedly repetitive, to allow fluency with some of these difficult sight words. The exercises are extensive and allow plenty of variety for the students. This series can be used as Take Home Readers, Guided Readers for use in classrooms, and as library titles in the children and adolescent sections. Teachers can address specific topics to cover in the crowded curriculum using these books for general reference titles. For example, ANZAC Day, Indigenous perspectives, goal-setting, well-being classes, Australian history, explorers and many more examples.

Knights needed many skills and expensive equipment and horses. They also had to be good fighters and horsemen.

To do well in a battle you had to have good gear. This gear included armour, swords, lances and other weapons. You needed to have archers to fire a lot of arrows as well as soldiers on foot. Horses had to be trained for battle. You also needed to train to make sure you were ready for the battles.

If they were successful in a battle, they could be given a house with land and workers. The knight was a soldier for the nobles and kings. Scan this code for a link to knights in battle.

Many students in Australian schools struggle with their reading, but this can be addressed and rectified. These students do not enjoy reading and do not pick up books naturally. They consider it a chore, and may experience anxiety around the idea of reading. They need an informal, joyous style of writing that shows confidence in them completing a book, and one which is not formal or too difficult. If the level of text is easy, it means they go faster but at least they are practising their reading and engaging with books.

Humour can also be important, so anything relevant to the topics of these books that is humorous or ridiculous is also included.

You will also note the repetitive use of sight words, the informal nature of the content, and, lastly, the use of a central character on their own reaching for the inner strength to do something bigger than themselves. This is to inspire the students to "have another go" at school and at improving their literacy. I remember teaching some students who basically, at the age of 11-12, had given up and considered themselves failures who would never get anywhere in life. This was heart-breaking for me and their parents, but worse for those students who faced a less than fulfilled and happy life. We need to break that feeling step-by-step!

eXplore Chapter Books Set 2 covers Reading Recovery levels 14-20 (approximately 6-7 years old), but the content is suitable for adolescents and adults.

In Australia, it is common to have a possum around the house. They are marsupials which means they have pouches for their babies. They are cute, furry animals with big, bushy tails.

Possoms eat fruit like bananas and apples. They like to live in the ceiling of the house where it's warm and dry. They are nocturnal and sleep during the day. At night, they feed and fight and make lots of noise. This was not good for me when I had to work all day.

8. Migration Challenges

Animals have been migrating for thousands of years. However, many things affect their journey. Humpback whales have been caught in shark nets when swimming too close to beaches. Some tourists don't follow the rules about giving them their space in the water.

Fences have been put up in many areas in Africa for cattle stations. However, they have also stopped the migration of the wildebeest in some areas. This stops them from getting to food and water and many are dying. If these animals die out, predators like lions and hyenas will also suffer.

Safety gear is very important to avoid bad injuries. Head injuries can be very serious. They can be reduced by wearing a good helmet.

What is a good helmet? This is a helmet that protects your face, teeth, and jaw, as well as your brain. It may stop serious injuries to your face!

If you fall off the bike at speed, you can hit the ground very hard. Always wear a good helmet! Don't get the cheap ones - your skull is too important!

With so many planets and galaxies out there, why is there silence? If there is very smart life in the universe, why is there no contact? The intelligent life would have to travel for a long time, and faster than the speed of light.

Why would they want to be here? Are they hiding out on Earth? Would they come all the way from another star just to be a tourist? Are there aliens already here living among us?

Buddy has always been very active. He loves chasing the ball. Sometimes I have to hide the ball to make him have a rest.

He also chases the hose and loves to swim. He jumps in my sister's pool, even in winter! He comes out shivering but still goes back in.

Buddy has also learned a new trick. He dives for rocks in the water! He can dive a long way under the water to find a rock. He's such a clever little dog!

1. Shipwrecked

Lemuel Gulliver could not work on the island.

In 1699, Gulliver sailed to the East Indies on a new ship. A bad storm pushed the ship back and it was wrecked on a small island.

Gulliver made it to a lifeboat with some other men. The lifeboat tipped over and Gulliver had to swim! He lost sight of the other men.

He let the water carry him. It carried him a long way.

Gulliver found solid sand beneath the water. He walked slowly to shore.
