Steering our way through tricky times...

It is no secret that Arthur Beale, like many other independent businesses, has struggled through the past year. We have faced countless difficulties, from the pavement being dug up during the Christmas period, refused grants, a new congestion charge, insurance companies refusing to cough up and, of course, the closure of our shop for most of the year.

To help us cope, we poured our resources and passion into creating a brand new website, and have had some wonderful feedback from new and old customers alike. With the current sorry state of the high street, and Central London still growing cobwebs, our future as a stand-alone shop in the West End is being tested to the limits. It is thanks to our new website that we have still been able to carry on and it has enabled us to open up the shop to people all over the world. Friends who would previously only visit us once in a blue moon when they made it to London, can now visit us anytime they open their laptop!

There's still some life in the old ship yet... watch this space!
