Important Note

Your new Stratus Mattress comes vacuum sealed to reduce the packaging size, this causes the mattresses Aeroframe Foam Core™ to memorise this compressed state as "normal" after being stored this way for an extended period. This makes the mattress take much longer than normal to inflate.

To fix this Oztent recommends once you have taken your purchase home that you remove the mattress from its packaging and lay out the mattress with the air valves fully open. Full inflation may take several hours but you can reduce this time by using the included X-Hale™ pump sack carry bag.

Once your mattress has been fully inflated seal the valves and leave inflated overnight. This not only provides time for the foam to recognise the inflated state as it's new "normal", reducing future inflation time but also providing time to identify any potential leaks as well.

After the first setup you will find the inflation times reduce as the Aeroframe Foam Core™ recognises its expanded state as normal more upon each use.

Inflation

1. On flat and even ground that is clear of debris, open your mattress and unroll it.

2. Open the cap of the inflation valve.

3. Flip the valves to intake only. (Orange stalk facing outwards).

4. Allow the mattress to self-inflate.

5. (Optional) To speed up the inflation process or to increase the firmness of the mattress use the X-Hale™ bag to add more air.

- a. Connect the bag to the valve.
- b. Open the end of the bag and quickly close to trap air inside the bag.
- c. Roll the bag down towards the valve pushing the air trapped in the X-Hale™ bag into the mattress.
- d. Repeat until desired firmness and remove the bag.

6. Flip the valve so the flat profile is facing outwards and seal the cap.

Deflation

1. Place the velcro straps and carry bag near the valve end of the mattress.
2. Open the inflation valve cap at the end of the mattress.
3. Flip the valve halfway open and allow air to escape.
4. Roll from the head of the mattress towards the valve.
5. To allow for a smaller pack size, unroll and repeat the above step before sealing the valve.
6. Use the velcro straps to secure the rolled-up mattress and place in the bag.
7. Place the mattress into the carry bag. Flatten the seal at the top of the carry bag, then roll the seal and secure the clips.
