WHO WE ARE

Inspired by nature and the need to step away from an industry saturated by mass produced home décor and furniture, Joglo Living was born with the goal to re-discover and enhance the beauty and quality of handmade products using mainly raw natural materials and further develop the idea of Slow Living.

OUR APPROACH

We take pride of our communities as people are the heart of everything we do; our collections are developed alongside native artisans using locally sourced and sustainable materials that have been traditionally worked with for generations. All our products are unique, preserving their natural characteristic.

DIRECTLY FROM THE MAKERS

At Joglo living our biggest challenge is to source and create the finest products, as quality is one of our fundamental principles, together with our production team we ensure that the standard of our raw materials are high before the production process begins.

We are able to source and produce custom and wholesale products and designs by request whether you are an event planner, a business or a design firm - please get in touch if you would like to discuss your project with us.

MATERIALS

RATTAN

Rattan is made from a plant that belongs to the palm family. Found from sea level up to 3,000mt, more than 600 species of these fast growing eco-friendly plants grow in the tropical regions of Australia, Asia and Africa, as a material it is strong, flexible and very durable. It became a very popular and loved in the furniture industry thanks to its characteristics and to the fact that it is a sustainable material.

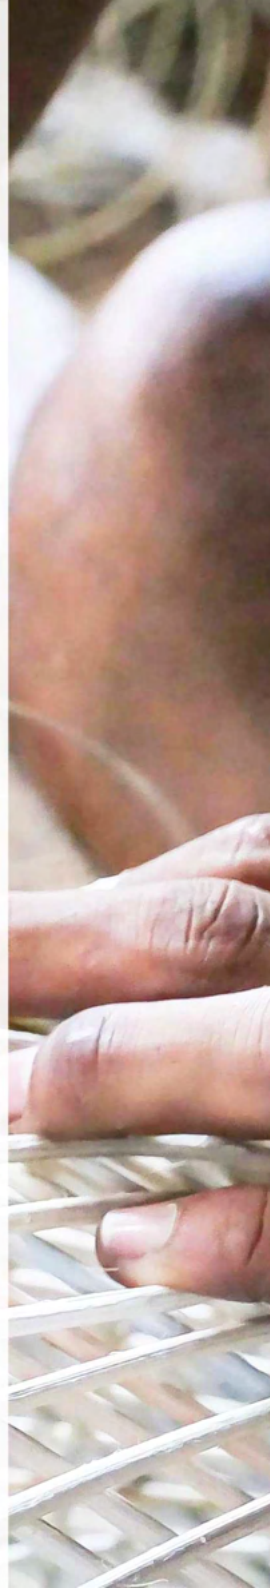

Evoking the essence of the tropics, it is the perfect, sustainable material to add a warm and natural feel to your home.

RAFFIA

Raffia is a natural straw-like material obtained by peeling raffia palm leaves. The palm, originally from Madagascar nowadays can be found in many tropical countries.

Raffia fibres are soft, pliable, strong and durable, easy to dye and biodegradable making it an excellent material for weaving baskets, hats, mats and rugs and many other wall décor products.

It is one of the most iconic materials in the boho style trend, easy to recognise and easy to love.

SEAGRASS

Seagrass grows in the coastal waters of Indonesia, Thailand and the Philippines.

It is a fibrous, durable water hyacinth commonly used by artisans and brands that are looking for eco-friendly, biodegradable and sustainable materials. It is shaped into many items for interior design such as baskets, lampshades, wall décor and furniture details.

JUTE

Jute is a long, soft and shiny fibre that is extracted from the bark of the jute vegetable plant and one of the strongest natural fibres in the world. Used for making textiles since the 3rd millennium BC. It is the second most produced natural fibre after cotton.

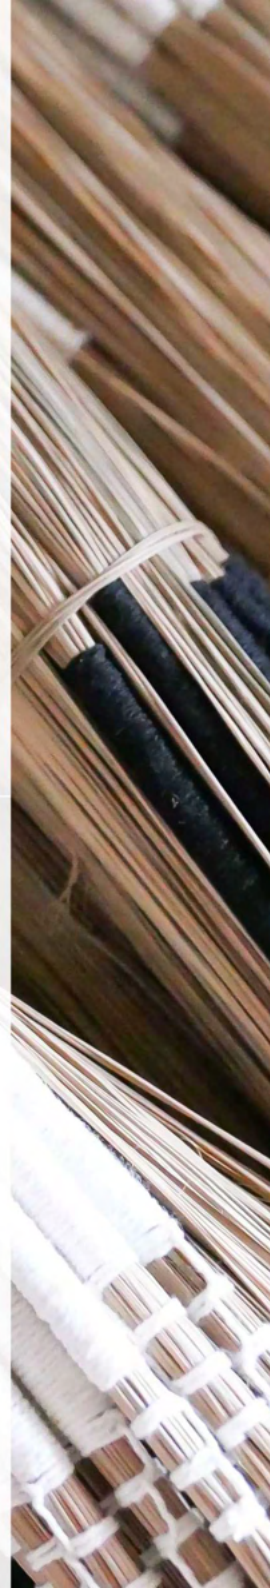

Jute has plenty of utilisations and it is often used for many products such as pillow covers, rugs, bags, wall décor and furniture.

TEAK

Teak wood is obtained from the tree species Tectona grandis, native of Indonesia. Teak is a rich golden-brown coloured wood and it is one of the hardest and most resistant types of woods available.

Is widely used as boat-building material due to its resistance. Thanks to its elegance and refinement it finds application in homes furniture. Perfect for indoor or outdoor furniture it is also used for plates, bowls and home décor.

The teak wood with its colour and veins is able to give to the interiors a tropical warm feeling.

BANANA BARK

A sustainable and versatile material for home decor products. Derived from the trunk and the root of the banana tree, it is then woven in a circular pattern to showcase varied colours and textures enhancing the beauty of natural tones. From baskets and trays to wall art and lampshades, banana bark can be crafted into various items. Its durability makes it ideal for everyday use, while its earthy tones complement a range of decor styles, from bohemian to modern.

NATURAL STONES

The use of natural stone has emerged as a timeless trend, adding both elegance and functionality to spaces like bathrooms. From the rustic charm of river and lava stone to the sleek luxury of marble and zeolite, each type of natural stone brings its own unique character to the ambiance ensuring durability and easy maintenance for years.
