May 26, 2015 – Unisync Corp. (TSXV: "UNI") is pleased to announce that its wholly owned subsidiary, Unisync Group Limited, has been selected by Air Canada to assume the role as the airline's uniform supplier, subject to conclusion of final contract terms. The multi-year agreement would cover over 28,000 employees, domestically and abroad, and include employees of Air Canada, Air Canada rouge®, and Air Canada's regional partners operating under the Air Canada Express® brand. Air Canada, together with its leisure airline subsidiary and regional airline partners, is expected to become Unisync's second largest customer.

The transitioning of existing product and historical data from the previous provider, the establishment of three boutiques in Canada to service employees, and the launch of an enhanced web-based ordering system has been completed.

"The decision to select Unisync as our uniform provider was the result of a comprehensive review of potential suppliers in the market," said Panos Dassios, Air Canada's Manager of Strategic Procurement – Corporate & Shared Services. "We evaluated product expertise, supply chain, social responsibility, innovation, and other factors, and ultimately decided to move forward with Unisync."

Canada's uniform provider is pleased to welcome Canada's largest airline!
