

Nature's Time for the First Peoples

Robert T. Watts

KNOWLEDGE BOOKS

Knowledge Books and Software

SAMPLE

First Nations people had many seasons. The northern people had different seasons to the southern people. Some nations had up to seven different seasons. Others had four seasons.

The First Peoples knew that another season had started by watching for signs. One of these signs was the water dragon and the python moving out of their sleeping places.

SAMPLE

The Sun gave warmth as it moved across the sky. This was the woman giving warmth. It became warmer for part of the year. This cycle kept going on and on.