Tips for using your interdental Brush

When using the interdental brush look for these signs:

- The wire should not rub either side of the surfaces you are cleaning, as this allows space for the bristles to remove plaque.
- The bristles should fit snugly between the teeth.
- There will be resistance from the bristles, but do not force a brush into a space
- If you are feeling any signs of pain, move down to a smaller size.

- The plastic-coated wire is safe to use around natural teeth, crowns, and implants.
- You can put the ventilated cap onto the handle for an extra extension in length.
- Avoid bending the wire at a 90° angle to the neck of the brush, instead gently curve the wire to reach back teeth.
